HOW TO NOMINATE TOWN OFFICERS

Because of the many requests for opinions regarding the new town election law, Attorney General Owen sent an opinion to W. W. Storms, district attorney of Racine county, covering opinions on all questions thus far suggested.

"It was the plain intent of the legislature to eliminate all party contests in town and village elections and substitute therefore a purely non-partisan election, says Mr. Owen. "The caucus referred to in the law is to be non-partisan caucus of all the electors of the town, of whatever political affiliation, and it is the nominees of such caucuses that will be entitled to a place, as caucus nominees, on the official ballot at the election. It follows that there is to be no party designation or candidates on the official ballot.

Uncertainty as to Call
The fact that the law does not provide any method of calling the first caucus is evidently due to an oversight on the part of the legislature and creates some uncertainty and confusion as to how the first caucus shall be called. Inasmuch as no method is provided in the law itself for the calling of the first caucus, it is apparent that such first caucus cannot be called under legal authority."

Mr. Owen suggests that where caucuses have not been held a number of electors should circulate a call for a caucus to be held at a given time. He says that the voters should be well notified of the time of holding same.

Who Goes on the Ballot
"Thus to make it plain," continues Mr. Owen, "this year the election occurs on April 7. The last day for holding the caucus will be March 30. There also seems to be some uncertainty as to whether both those who are nominated by nomination papers and those nominated at the caucus are entitled to positions on the ballot. Upon this subject the law is plain. The names of those who are nominated at the caucus are to be placed on the official ballot."

Mr. Owen says a candidate defeated at the caucus may be nominated by a nomination paper, if he receives the requisite number of signatures.

Town and Village Nominations
"Any person desiring to run for a town office at the coming spring election, may have his name placed on the ballot in either of the following ways:

First—A regular caucus, the same as formerly held, may be held at least seven days prior to the election and any person nominated at such caucuses, for any town office, shall have his name placed upon the official ballot as hereinafter set forth.

Second—At such caucuses, if any is held, three qualified electors shall be elected as a caucus committee and next year the said three electors so elected shall give at least five days notice of the time and place of holding the caucus for said succeeding year.

Third—Whether or not a caucus is held and whether or not a person receives the nomination in a caucus, if any is held, this year, any person may have his name placed on the official ballot providing he circulates the regular nomination papers and receives signatures equal to at least ten per cent of all votes cast in the town for all candidates for governor at the last preceding general election, provided that such nomination papers are filed with the town clerk at least five days prior to the holding of such election.

Fourth—Under this law, a town need not hold a caucus this year and all candidates may be nominated by nomination papers or one candidate may be nominated by the caucus and any number of candidates may be nominated by nomination papers.

Fifth—All individual tickets are done away with and the town clerk must furnish sample and official ballots to be printed at the expense of the town, the sample ballots to be printed upon tinted paper and the official ballots upon white paper. All persons, either receiving a nomination at the caucus or having filed nomination papers, shall have their names inserted by the clerk, in the ballot, the names of the candidates to be arranged in alphabetical order under their respective office and sufficient space shall be left under each office to write in a name in place of any on the ballot. In other words, the clerk prepares the same kind of a ballot as is now used at the primary election, and for instance, undertown chairman, should be placed the name of all persons running for town chairman, under that one space and so forth, down through all the different offices. The voters then vote by marking a cross after the particular person they wish to vote for, for the particular office, or of course, everyone has a right to write in a name on the official ballot of any person they wish for, but only the names marked or written on the official ballot shall be counted.

The ballots on election day are canvassed and counted the same as at any other election."

CHAS. E. BRIERE, District Attorney.

Loss By Fire.
John Bell received word on Tuesday that the dwelling house on his farm in the town of Sigel was destroyed by fire on Monday. It seems that the tenant, Mr. Schroeder, was burning up some rubbish on the place when the fire was communicated to the dwelling and it was burned to the ground. Mr. Bell estimates his loss at about $500 with no insurance. The barn on the premises was saved.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.
The following marriage licenses were issued the past week by the county clerk:
Edward Scheuneman and Della Hoffman both of the town of Arpin.
Charles Close, Dodge county to Cora Green town of Grand Rapids.
Dan Volom and Minnie Borgman both of the town of Arpin.
Gottfried Magnusson, Spooner to Clara Peterson Marshfield.

An Agreeable Surprise.

Mrs. Martin Hanson, who has been confined to her home by sickness during the past thirteen weeks, was agreeably surprised on her birthday by a number of her friends who brought in a gift of flowers, and she wishes to thank her friends for their thoughtfulness. Also S. Holberg for the gift which he brought, which had been made up by a number of friends. Mrs. Hanson has been ill for several years past and thoroughly appreciates the kindness that prompted her friends in this matter.

ARE PROTESTING AGAINST HIGH TAX

It seems that the residents of Pittsville are up in arms against the present high taxes, and they propose to do something over there to remedy the evil. The following letter has been sent out to numerous people living in that vicinity, which is self-explanatory and tells what they propose to do about the matter as an initial step. Following is the letter:

Pittsville, Wis., March 19, 1914.
Dear Sir:—Whereas the Counties in the southern part of the State have been calling Non-Partisan Conventions, and passing resolutions protesting against the present high rate of State taxation, and against the University of Wisconsin entering into politics.

And whereas the said Counties have appointed Committees to confer with other Counties of the State.

The business men and farmers of Pittsville and surrounding territory, met in the city hall in Pittsville, Wis. on Monday, March 16, and appointed a Committee to call a convention of the citizens of Wood County, Wis., to be held on the 9th day of April 1914, in the City of Pittsville, Wis. To discuss the high rate of taxation, and to appoint Committees to confer with other Counties of the State relative to calling a state convention.

Good speakers will be in attendance, and we the Committee do earnestly request your hearty cooperation in getting out a good representation of the citizens of Wood County and boost the Convention.

Signed:
Dr. Chas. A. Salter,
C. E. McKee,
H. C. McCoy.

Committees.
Of course it is not only the people of Pittsville who are protesting against the rate of taxation as it exists at the present time, but the people all over the state are doing the same thing. Those fellows from Madison who have been proving that the taxes are not high and stating that the commissions are all supporting, seemed to have failed to convince the people, and instead of being pacified by the hope that has been sent out, it has had a tendency to rouse their ire, and the result is that many meetings have been held over the state for the purpose of discussing the situation and to see if something cannot be done to remedy the evil.

Another very interesting meeting was held by SS Peter & Paul Court No. 496, Catholic Order of Foresters of this city on Wednesday evening, during which the many members present were given a treat in the way of a debate on the question, "Resolved that the United States should intervene in the Mexican Situation." Each of the debaters demonstrated that they had done some very hard work in preparing their points and both sides of the question were shown up in a way which could not be much improved upon.

Those who took part in the debate were: H. B. Weiland, E. N. Pomranville, Joseph Reiland and Arman Smith on the affirmative; and J. L. Reinhardt, W. H. Carey, A. F. Billmeyer and Ferdinand Link on the negative. The jury which was composed of J. R. Ragan, A. P. Nintz, Dr. C. T. Foote, Matt Schligh and Matt Carey, after much deliberation decided that the United States should not intervene for the present at least so it is expected that President Wilson will call off the Cabinet meeting which has been arranged for to take up this question. The verdict of the jury was four to one in favor of the negative.

Speaker Perdzcock announced that there would be another of these interesting debates on some current question at the next meeting.

Firemen Hold Annual Banquet.
The east side firemen held their annual banquet at the east side fire house on Monday evening, at which there was a full attendance of firemen as well as a number of honorary members and city officials. An oyster stew was served and the evening was spent in a very pleasant manner. Among the honorary members present were T. A. Taylor, H. A. Sampson, Sr., E. T. Bodette, Herman Abel, A. J. Hasbrouck, Ed. Mahoney, Sr., and Jacob Lutz, ex-chief. The fire boys all say that the style in which Chief Schuman served the stew and other refreshments was excellent and they enjoyed the evening immensely.

Was Not Diphtheria.
The report that Mrs. J. J. Patrick and daughter Myrtle were sick with diphtheria proved to be untrue, notwithstanding the fact that they were quarantined for several days with what was supposed to be that disease. One of them had quinsy and the other tonsillitis, and they have both recovered sufficiently to be about again.

Returned from the Hospital.
Frank Collier, who has been in the hospital at Rochester, Minn., for some time past, where he underwent an operation for appendicitis, returned home on Friday. Since his operation he has been getting along nicely with every prospect of a complete recovery.

CARL NOT GUILTY OF EMBEZZLEMENT

The case of the state against L. B. Carl, who was charged with embezzling the funds of the Marshfield electric light company, came to a close last Thursday when the jury brought in a verdict of not guilty. The case occupied the attention of the circuit court for about a week, and the prosecution introduced a large mass of evidence and called a number of witnesses, but it seems that it failed to convince the jury of the man's guilt.

Carl was for several years superintendent of the water and lighting plants at Marshfield and last fall there were certain parties who suspected and openly suggested that there was a shortage of the funds in that department. They were so insistent in their demands that at last a committee was appointed to examine the books of the company, and according to the report of this committee there was a shortage in the cash amounting to between four and five thousand dollars. When they made the first report Carl was arrested at Lexington, Ky., where he had gone some time before, but apparently not with the idea of hiding or getting away from the people who wanted him.

During the trial it developed that several people had access to the cash of the company, and notwithstanding that many irregularities were found in the bookkeeping, it seemed to be impossible for the state to prove to the satisfaction of the jury that Carl had been guilty of the charge against him.

Up at Marshfield the people were divided in their opinion as to Carl's guilt, some of them being of the opinion that he was guilty, while others were equally certain that he was innocent.

On the first ballot the jury stood 10 for acquittal, which would indicate that the state had not put up as strong a case as was expected. Carl was defended by Attorney W. E. Wheelan, assisted by Attorney T. W. Bruzau.

WISCONSIN IN THE DAYS OF "OLD ABE" AND NOW.
(Wisconsin Farmer.)

When "Old Abe" was launched upon his career of fame by the Eighth Wisconsin Regiment a little more than half a century ago Wisconsin had 775,000 people; today she has 2,500,000.

In 1860 there were 69,270 farms in Wisconsin, in 1910, 177,127. The acreage in farms in Wisconsin reported to the government in 1860 was 7,893,587. In 1910 this had increased to 21,060,066, vast areas of timber and lowlands having been transferred into farms and farm homes.

The value of farm property, implements, livestock in 1860 was, according to the census, $154,683,386. The reports to the government in 1910 show this increase tenfold, with the enormous total of farm products of $1,413, 118,785.

In 1860 Wisconsin stood fifteenth in population, of all the states, and today despite the growth of new countries, which Wisconsin has helped to people, and the tremendous growth of large cities in older states, Wisconsin has crept to the thirteenth place.

Government statistics show there were 2,059,105 gallons of milk produced on Wisconsin farms in 1860 and in 1900 this had increased to almost 500,000,000 gallons.

In 1860 there were 2,623,750 pounds of butter made on Wisconsin farms, and in 1905, 89,155,975 pounds, about twenty-five times as much.

Allwaukee had a population of 45,416 in 1800 and today she is crowding the 400,000 mark.

There were 1,104,300 pounds of cheese made in Wisconsin in 1860 and 12,006 in 1905.

Only 905 miles of railroad in Wisconsin in 1860 as compared to 7,475 miles in 1910.

The levied ad valorem tax in Wisconsin in 1860 was $2,329,011 and in 1910 $-0,503,363.

These are but a few of the interesting government statistics showing the incomparable growth of the state since the war of the rebellion and the days when "Old Abe" started on his career of fame.

Looking Over Paper Mills.
Chris Grapp, a pressman with the Milwaukee Journal, was in the city on Tuesday to look over the paper mills in this vicinity. Mr. Grapp has been on the journal for the past eighteen years, during which time he has ground out thousands of tons of print paper from the mills in this city and vicinity. Mr. Grapp is a brother to Jacob Grapp, the cigar maker, who formerly made his home in this city.

Returned from Convention.
A. C. Otto was in Milwaukee last week where he attended the Rexall convention. He reports having had a pleasant time and is well pleased with his trip. Mr. Otto is numbered among the eight leading Rexall dealers in the state, and one of the Milwaukee papers published a cartoon of him one day. Of course the picture was not as good looking as Gus, but then the artist probably drew it in a hurry.

Several False Alarms.
Just to keep the fire companies limbered up and to make them earn the big money they are receiving each year, there have been several fire alarms turned in lately. One on Saturday proved to be a chimney pipe at the residence of Joe Knibslak, and another on Tuesday was caused by some grass burning on the west side. No damage resulted.

Village Has Ornamental Lights.

The village of Keewatin, Minn., with a population of but seven hundred, has one of the handsomest systems of ornamental lighting to be found anywhere. It is believed that this is the smallest installation of ornamental street lighting. The progressive spirit in this little town as evidenced by the installation of a Great White Way in its business section is to be heartily commended. Twenty powerful lamps, of the ornamental luminous type, have been installed on alternate sides of the main street, making that thoroughfare almost as light as day.

ORGANIZE CENTRAL WIS. PRESS ASS'N.

At a meeting of newspaper men held at Marshfield on Friday afternoon there was formed a society to be known as the Central Wisconsin Press Association, which will embrace newspaper editors and publishers and proprietors of job printing establishments in the counties of Clark, Langlade, Lincoln, Marathon, Portage, Taylor and Wood and any other contiguous territory that may be decided upon later.

The idea of forming a press association was conceived several weeks ago, E. B. Barr, associate editor of the Marshfield Times, being its most active advocate. That the plan met with favor is clearly demonstrated by the fact that thirty men eligible to membership attended the organization meeting, while at least five others have endorsed the move and have expressed a desire to join.

An afternoon session was held at the city hall, when plans were tentatively formulated, views exchanged and a committee was appointed to draw up a suitable set of resolutions. A banquet took place at Hotel Blodgett at 7 o'clock in the evening, when M. C. Douglas of the Dunn County News, Menomonie, gave a splendid talk on "Modernizing the Country Newspaper." The committee on resolutions then reported and the association was formally organized.

The officers chosen are as follows:
President—E. B. Barr, Marshfield Times.

Vice President—L. Williamson, Neillville Times.

Secretary-Treasurer—B. E. Walters, Mosinee Times.

President Barr appointed an executive council, consisting of one member from each county, as follows: Henry Berner, Antigo Journal; C. E. Crothers, Neillville Republican; Press; W. A. Drumb, Grand Rapids Tribune; J. J. Voornestek, Lily Lake Herald; E. B. Thayer, Wausau Pilot; E. D. Glennon, Stevens Point Gazette, and R. G. Lee, Tomahawk Leader.

Meetings of the association will be held three yearly—the annual meeting on the third Friday of June and business meetings on the third Friday in October and the third Friday in February. It is planned to make the June meeting a semi-social gathering, to which members will be expected to bring their families.

Marshfield extended a cordial invitation to the visiting craftsmen, representing nineteen cities and villages, namely, Stevens Point, Neillville, Withee, Dorchester, Mosinee, Grand Rapids, Pittsville, Unity, Greenwood, Colby, Vesper, Edgar, Marathon City, Loyal and Abbottsford. The city was theirs from the time they arrived until they departed and a fine spirit of enthusiasm prevailed. That the new organization will be a permanent institution working for better things for central Wisconsin as well as for its members is confidently expected.

It is possible that the June meeting of the association will be held in this city, as an invitation has been extended to them to make Grand Rapids their headquarters at that time and it is expected that the invitation will be accepted.

County Educational Board.

The following men have told their nomination papers for members of the county educational board: Joseph Seidl of Pittsville, Reuben Connor of Auburndale, P. N. Christensen of the town of Lincoln and Ed. Morris of the town of Arpin, and E. Eichsteadt of Port Edwards. It is not expected that they will have any opposition.

Spring is Here.

According to Hoyle and Ayers almanack, spring started on Saturday last, but outside of this there is nothing to indicate that we have reached this much looked for goal. Mercury doesn't go quite down to zero these nights, but everything remains frozen solid most of the time.

MANY ANSWERS TO THE WORD CONTEST

First prize on one dollar in the missing word contest was won by Miss Sylvia Pleckham, R. D. No. 5, Grand Rapids, Wis., and the money awaits her at the Tribune office.

The second prize of a year's subscription was won by Mrs. Frank Jocko, of 321 9th street, Grand Rapids.

The interest that was displayed in this contest was truly surprising, and the answers received indicated that the ads had been read very carefully. The missing word was the word "eyes" in the A. P. Hixxy ad, and was correctly guessed by a number of people. Many found words missing where there were no missing words, and many passed over the place where the missing word was to find a harder place to look for it.

This week two prizes will be awarded again the same as last week, and readers of the Tribune are urged to get their answers in early so that they will reach the office by Saturday night.

The fact that you've out of town need not keep you from making a guess, as your chances are just as good as if you lived here in the city.

As to which is the biggest little store in Grand Rapids, nobody came in with the right answer and this will be open for one more week, when the owner of the store will make the to get two dollars of easy money. If announcement. Now here is a chance you haven't a postage stamp, just send your answer up in an envelope and leave it at the Tribune office.

A WISCONSIN MAN INVENTED THE AUTO

There is talk among auto enthusiasts of conferring some sort of recognition upon Dr. J. W. Carhart of Austin, Texas, who, it is claimed, was the first man to construct an automobile and run it. Dr. Carhart was formerly a resident of Racine, and it was in the year 1871 that he put his first horseless carriage upon the highway, he living at Racine at that time. The first auto differed somewhat in lines from the automobile of today, being operated by the use of coal. Dr. Carhart says that when he appeared on the highway with his first machine it was not necessary to carry a horn or other alarm to let people know that he was coming. In fact, the machine made enough noise so that teams and pedestrians for several blocks in every direction gave him the right of way.

One man steered the machine while another shoveled coal into the furnace, and the way they rattled down the street was a terror to everything in the shape of horse flesh. It had a modern locomotive backed off the map as a noise producer, and it is needless to say that the public did not hail the new invention with the delight they might have done could they have foreseen what the industry of manufacturing autos would eventually develop into.

The machine invented by Dr. Carhart was run only a short time, when it was dismantled and the engine was placed in a printing office, and there was a lull in the auto world for a time. A few years after this there were a number of cities that had three engines that were operated by steam, but this method of propulsion never became very popular for a long term of years, or until it was applied to the pleasure car that used something besides coal for fuel.

Dr. Carhart by the way, is a father of Charles W. Carhart, who formerly lived in this city and was engaged in the undertaking business in company with J. W. Natwick. Dr. Carhart visited in this city while his son resided here, and the well along in years, is still an enthusiastic automobilist. He also invented a tire constructed of paper to take the place of rubber, but up to date this has never come into general use.

CANADA WINNING CHAMPIONSHIPS IN AGRICULTURE

The Latest Is Winning Championship for Oats a Third Time.

Recently was published the fact of remarkable winnings by Canadian farmers in several events during the past three or four years. The latest is that of Messrs. J. C. Hill & Sons of Lloydminster, Saskatchewan, who won in a hard contest for the oat championship over Montana. At the National Corn Exposition at Dallas during February, Montana oats were awarded the championship for the United States. Waiting for the winner of this to be announced was a peck of oats belonging to the Canadian growers above mentioned, and alongside of these was a like quantity belonging to a Minnesota grower, who was barred from the regular competition because he was at one time the winner of the trophy—the prize. The three entries were side by side on the judge's bench. It would not be possible to bring together three more likely samples. The Montana and Saskatchewan entries were of equal weight—50 pounds to the bushel. The Minnesota sample was some three pounds lighter. The award was unanimous in favor of the Saskatchewan oats. A remarkable feature and one greatly to the credit of the Canadian product was that the oats, grown in 1913, were grown and shown by those who had competed during the past two years, winning on each occasion. This, the third winning, gave them for the third time the world's championship and full possession of the splendid $1,500 silver trophy contributed by the state of Colorado.

The oats which have thus given to Western Canada another splendid advertising card, were grown 300 miles north of the international boundary line, proving that in this latitude, all the smaller grains can be grown with greater perfection and with more abundant yield than further south. In all this country are to be found farmers who produce oats running from 42 to 48 pounds to the bushel, and with yields of from 60 to 100 bushels per acre. Wheat also does well, grades high, and yields from 30 to 40 bushels per acre. The same may be said of any portion of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, famed over the world not only as a country where championship grains are grown, but where cattle and horses are raised that also carry off championships and where wild grasses are abundant yielding cultivated hay and alfalfa are grown, thus affording plenty of food, and with a good climate, sufficient shelter and plenty of water, bring about results such as western Canada has been able to record. Thousands of farmers from the United States who have their homes in Canada bear ample testimony to the benefits they have derived from farming in western Canada.—Advertisement.

Matters Physiological.

The skin contains more than 2,000,000 openings, which are the outlets of an equal number of sweat glands. The human skeleton consists of more than 200 distinct bones. An amount of blood equal to the whole quantity in the body passes through the heart once every minute. The full capacity of the lungs is about 320 cubic inches. About two-thirds of a pint of air is inhaled and exhaled at each breath in ordinary respiration. The stomach daily produces nine pounds of gastric juice for digestion of food; its capacity is about five pints. There are more than 500 separate muscles in the body, with an equal number of nerves and blood vessels. The weight of the heart is from eight to twelve ounces. It beats 100,000 times in twenty-four hours. Each perspiratory duct is one-fourth of an inch in length, of the whole about nine miles. The average man takes 5½ pounds of food and drink each day, which amounts to ten tons of solid and liquid nourishment annually. A man breathes 15 times in a minute, and 3,000 cubic feet, or about 375 hogheads of air every hour of his existence.

NOT A MIRACLE

Just Plain Cause and Effect.

There are some quite remarkable things happening every day, which seem almost miraculous.

Some persons would not believe that a man could suffer from coffee drinking so severely as to cause spells of unconsciousness. And to find relief in changing from coffee to Postum is well worth recording.

"I used to be a great coffee drinker, so much so that it was killing me by inches. My heart became so weak I would fall and lie unconscious for an hour at a time."

"My friends, and even the doctor, told me it was drinking coffee that caused the trouble. I would not believe it, and still drank coffee until I could not leave my room."

"Then my doctor, who drinks Postum himself, persuaded me to stop coffee and try Postum. After much hesitation I concluded to try it. That was eight months ago. Since then I have had few of those spells, none for more than four months."

"I feel better, sleep better and am a better every day. I now drink nothing but Postum and touch no coffee, and as I am seventy years of age all my friends think the improvement quite remarkable."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Write for a copy of the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville."

Postum now comes in two forms: Regular Postum—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

SYNOPSIS.

Tommy North, returning to his room in Mrs. Moore's boarding house at 27 1/2 A. St., discovered the body of Capt. John Hanks, another member, with a knife wound in his breast. Suspicion rests upon a man called on Hanks in the evening and had left the name of Lawrence Wade. During the excitement a strange woman who gives her name as Rosalie LeGrange, appears and takes into her own home across the street all of Mrs. Moore's belongings, including Miss Estella, an invalid, who was confined to the room she occupied and whose brother was a favorite among the other boarders. Wade is supposed to be about to leave the country. Mrs. LeGrange, who, while playing her trade as a trance medium, had also been a nurse, calls at his office to tell what she knows of the crime. Wade is there, Constance Hanks, widow of the murdered man, whose sister had been in the hospital, appears. Mrs. Hanks, says she had left her husband and children in an effort to settle their affairs. She admits Wade was in love with her. Wade had been in the office of the murdered man in an effort to settle their affairs. She admits Wade was in love with her. CHAPTER VII.

Facing the Music.

Tommy woke next morning to the appropriate mental and physical tortures. When memory had finished with her rack, the future applied itself to breakfast. He must meet her. Her morose and jealousy struggled in him with a perverse pride. At any rate, he would not run away. No, he would face her. He would look into her eyes. The last embers of a ruined existence would shine through his own. The day after she had seen and realized, he would go away forever and send her just one letter—no, just one flower with his card—to let her know what he had felt and what he had cast aside.

Then—since the human spirit is never static—having touched the low est depths, his thoughts began to rise toward hope. Just how had he behaved last night? What had she seen him do? From the haze of confused memories, a clear fact appeared in this place and there. He had been aware of her standing at the landing. How had she looked? Somehow, he could not remember her face. Why? Because he had been looking at her shoe buckles—at something which glittered—why?

The tragic night of the Hanks murder flashed in upon him, and with it a fact which he had told neither the police in the third degree process nor yet the coroner at the inquest, for the simple reason that he had forgotten it. Now, he remembered it clearly, perfectly. A freak of drunken consciousness had brought back something which he might never have remembered again.

"Gee whiz!" he cried, leaping out of bed, headache and all. "She's looking for evidence—this will fix her!" A cold dip and a dash of blonde restored him wonderfully, for the first time.

hear him, he spoke louder, "Miss Lane."

Betsy-Barbara turned. Alone with him—since Constance had gone on—her eyes showed the emotions which she had suppressed in public.

"What is it?" she said.

"I wanted," said Tommy—"I wanted to tell you something."

"I think," responded Betsy-Barbara, "that you needn't make any more explanations—thank you."

She was turning away when Tommy recovered himself.

"Oh, it isn't that," he said. "I can't explain that, of course. I'm not trying to explain that, Miss Lane. It's just something—something new in the line of evidence—about the Hanks case—I think it may help."

Betsy-Barbara turned again—and this time quickly. Her look was startled—but—beaten—praised—triumphantly.

"Something new?" she said, breathlessly. "Oh, you angel, fresh from heaven! Shall I send for Constance?"

This was the point where Tommy North became a strategist.

"It has to do," he said humbly, "with the way I was last night. You saw me—I shouldn't like to tell her."

"Let's take a walk," proposed Betsy-Barbara, with her wonderful practicality.

"If you wish," said Tommy North humbly, and yet thrilled with a sense of renewed companionship. Indeed, by the time they reached the street, he had recovered his spirits so much as to propose, because the street was so noisy, that they take a cross-town car and walk up Fifth avenue. The car was crowded; they must stand; so they did not approach the subject of the moment until they were treading the street of the spenders.

"Well, what is it? I'm dying to know," said Betsy-Barbara, the instant they reached the avenue.

"Did I do anything strange?" inquired Tommy, "when I first saw you last night?"

"You nearly tumbled at my feet, for one thing," replied Betsy-Barbara.

"What—what were you wearing on your feet?"

Betsy-Barbara thought a second on this peculiar question.

"My velvet slippers with the rhinestone buckles," she said.

Tommy nodded solemnly.

"That was it—I was reaching for them last night—just as I was reaching for something the night I brought Betsy-Barbara. 'Go on! Please go on.'"

"I had got to the head of the stairs on the night of the murder," said Tommy. "The gas was lighted in the hall. I was picked up. You know how your mind gets on one little thing when you're picked—"

"I don't," put in Betsy-Barbara, in spite of her interest in the story—"but please go on."

"And I saw something bright in the hallway, close to Captain Hanks's door. I braced against a post and looked at it. It was a cluster of diamonds—the more I think of it, the more it seems like that shoe buckle of yours. I reached out to get it. Then I tumbled and hit—the stuff. The tumbled and the sticky feeling put diamonds out of my mind. But I'm sure, just the same, that I saw a bunch of diamonds or something beside that door. You've asked me to tell you anything I might find about the Hanks case. And I'm telling that's all."

Betsy-Barbara considered.

"It may not mean anything," she said, "and it may mean a good deal." She considered again. "Even if the diamonds were there, maybe it had nothing to do with our case. If anybody had been robbed that night, this evidence would be very important. But the police say that the house wasn't entered. Then again, what became of the diamonds? It seems no one else noticed them."

"Well," remarked Tommy North cynically, "there were a great many policemen in the house."

Betsy-Barbara walked on, still thinking. "Maybe, I'm afraid, though, that it might be only an aberration," she said finally.

"Perhaps," echoed Tommy North. And now, having finished his introduction, he approached the subject nearest his heart.

"Of course, that's all," he said, "except that I owe you an apology for my condition last night."

"It is to yourself," said Betsy-Barbara, "that you owe the apology. Mr. North, why did you do it—again?"

Now it was in Tommy North's impulses to tell exactly why he did it—to come out with the truth, accompanied by his opinion of phrasing the Standard. But that would have been to declare a declaration; and to declare his feelings for Betsy-Barbara was leagues beyond his present courage.

"Oh," he said, carelessly, desperately. "I got a job. That's all. And I took it out in booze."

"You told me the other night it was because you hadn't anything better to do. Mr. North," she added, suddenly announced that the choice of the livermen, who members of the city committee, who elect the lord mayor, has fallen upon Sir Thomas Vansittart Bower, who is the head of a large firm of paper merchants. Sir Vansittart, as he is popularly called, has been a common councilman since 1899. He was high sheriff of London in 1905-6, when he assisted the lord mayor, Sir Walter Vaughan-Morgan, to entertain the late King George of Greece at the Guildhall, and to welcome King George and Queen Mary, at that time prince and princess of Wales, on their return home from India. Sir Vansittart, during his year of office, made civic visits to Milan and Rome, when he was honored with an audience by the king of Italy.

In the Wrong Shop.

An old gentleman walked up to the pretty girl attendant at the counting room of a daily newspaper office and said: "Miss, I would like to get copies of your paper for a week back."

"You had better get a porous plaster," she abstractedly replied. "You get them just across the street."

For both the United States and Canada relative to good roads."

Wiles of the Walter.

"I know I am looking like a fright tonight," the woman said.

The man studied her dress, her hair and her complexion closely.

"I don't see anything the matter with you," he said. "So far as I can see, you are looking as well as usual."

"But I am not," she insisted. "There is something wrong, and that head waiter said at a glance what it was. I had been put to the mark here in this out-of-the-way corner. He would have given us a table right under the chandelier in the middle of the room."

All the best-dressed people are always seated in the most conspicuous places, so as to make the restaurant look more attractive. I am glad to say that that is where I usually sit. The plain people are ranged along the sides of the room, just as we are to night."

the case—or thought he had. Something he'd forgotten—something which came back to him last night when he was—well, you saw, in detail. And detail he repeated Tommy North's story about the diamond cluster. Rosalie, as she listened with downcast look, used all her will to keep her head steady and her fingers busy.

"That's interesting," she remarked, in a matter-of-fact tone, when Betsy-Barbara had finished. "But I don't know it's important. They're funny things when they're drunk and they're ready to swear to 'em when they're sober up. Intend to tell Mrs. Hanks or the lawyers about it?"

"I thought I might—I'm doing every least thing to help."

"Well, the evidence of a drunk wouldn't go at all in a court of law," pursued Rosalie, her eyes still on her work. "Mr. North is pretty humiliated already, and he's a nice young man, he'll probably cut out drink now he's in business for himself. Still, if you think it's your duty—"

"Oh, I hope you think it isn't," said Betsy-Barbara. "I don't want to put Mr. North in that position, again."

"Can't we where it's the least bit of use, an' I would only do Mr. North harm," replied Rosalie. "If you was me, would you french this seam? Yes, I guess it looks more tasty that way."

Rosalie turned the conversation to a discussion of autumn fashions. She sewed and chatted for ten minutes. Then she looked ostentatiously at the clock.

"Gracious! A quarter to four and I must be down to the guardrail," with that landed at a quarter past."

She rose, gathered coat, hat and gloves, and hurried to the corner drug store, from which she made by telephone an immediate appointment with Inspector McGee. They met in Abingdon square, a rendezvous halfway between her house and headquarters. She proceeded to business at once.

"I've been 'jest settin' on this Hanks case, inspector," she said. "Knew if I waited long enough, something would hatch. It has, but I can't say yet whether it's a rooster or a duck. In the first place, when's the grand jury goin' to get to the Wade indictment?"

"Pretty soon, I guess. I've been holding them off until I get more evidence."

"Well, keep holdin' 'em off." "Honest, what have you got?"

"Wouldn't you like to know?" Here Rosalie broke out all her dimples, so that Inspector McGee smiled on her. "Call it a hunch from the spirits."

"You can't come that on me," said the inspector, half playfully. "I know your kind of spirits."

"Well, call it a woman's notion then. If you like that any better. The grand jury's the first thing. Next, that the finding of Mrs. Moore's is still vacant, isn't it? I want to go through it with you from top to bottom—an' I've got to do it so I won't be seen."

"That's easy. We can enter the block from the other side and go in by the back door."

"All right. How's two o'clock tomorrow?"

"Fine."

"Now I'd better run along. I don't want to take any chances of being seen with you."

"Honest, what have you found?"

"Honest, I don't know myself," said Rosalie LeGrange, dimpling over her shoulder as she walked away. McGee stood following her with his eyes.

a plain-clothes man from the precinct detective force keeping it under watch and ward.

To this house came Captain McGee and Rosalie LeGrange. They approached with all the caution of forethought, entering the block through an office building on the next street, opening the area door with a pass-key, going into the house by the basement door at the rear.

"Ugh! I hate to touch it," said Rosalie, drawing her skirts away from the wreckage of the collar. "But glad to work old clothes. Guess Mrs. Moore never kept this place any too tidy—an' with this dust an' your wet-cop, Martin McGee, it's just scandalous now. Well, come on!" And so she dragged her police escort through floor after floor, room after room—at first a superficial survey and then a minute search.

As they came to Captain Hanks's room, Inspector McGee stopped and made a notation.

"You can see," he said, "that it was an inside job. Beginning on the roof, there's no way to enter except by the hatch which goes down into the lumber room. On account of the fire regulations, the hatch couldn't be locked, but it was closed inside by a bolt. That hatch hadn't been monkeyed with. In fact, the dirt around the edges showed that the hatch hadn't been opened for a long time."

"And the fire escape?" asked Rosalie, pursing her brows with concentration.

"Runs from the lumber room straight down. Passes at the third floor the windows of Captain Hanks's room. The corresponding room on the second floor is vacant. No one entered by the basement, either. Windows and doors all bolted inside and showed no signs of being tampered with. You see, it was this Wade fellow, or an inside job. And while we're talking about locks—here Martin McGee opened Captain Hanks's door and stood with a foot on either side of the threshold—this is a little piece of evidence I've figured out myself. Notice, he had a spring lock. Mrs. Moore says he put it on himself. That indicates he was afraid of somebody—Wade, probably. Him being so particular on that point, it was only natural he should keep it locked when he was asleep. Now, look here."

This was an "inside" spring lock of the ordinary pattern. It could be controlled from without only by the key. Within, however, was a knob and a button by which one could turn back the catch and render it temporarily useless as a lock. "Well, now," said McGee, "the catch was back when they found the body, and the door wasn't locked at all. If he'd been alive after Wade left him, he wouldn't have gone to sleep without seeing that his door was locked. My idea is, he turned the knob and shut the catch back when he let Wade in—the way a person does with a spring lock. Anyhow," concluded McGee, "it's a suspicious fact."

"Very," said Rosalie; and McGee did not catch the fitness in her tone. "But anyone who got on to that fire escape, one way or another, could have entered Hanks's room by the window, couldn't he?"

"Yes," said Inspector McGee, "if Hanks's window was open. But the windows were closed when they found the body. Most of the witnesses say that. They remember because when this Mrs. Moore faints those gas opened both windows to give her air. They say they had to open the catches to get the sashes up."

"Stuffy muggy night, an' both windows closed—an' him an American!"

"Well, there's nothing particularly strange about that, is there?" said Inspector McGee.

"Not to you!" replied Rosalie LeGrange, dimpling on him. "I guess—well, I guess before we do anything else we'll go over everything in that room."

They entered. The bed was as Rosalie had seen it on the night of the tragedy—the sheets and quilts turned back as though one had risen quietly and naturally. It was to the bed that Rosalie turned her first attention. At the foot of the white counterpane, her eyes stopped—stopped and rested.

"It's spotted," she said almost under her breath.

Inspector McGee looked also.

STREET CAR GETS LOST IN CHICAGO

Passengers Are Carried All Over Town at the Mercy of a "Green" Crew.

ON WAY—BUT WHERE?

Twenty-six-ton "Charlot," With Its Crew and Two "Owl" Passengers Disappear as Effectually as Collar Button Under Chiffonier.

Chicago—Think of a street car being lost!

Incongruous? Yes, but not impossible.

It has happened—it happened just a few nights ago, and in Chicago.

A 26-ton Chicago passenger "owl" car, with its crew and two passengers, disappeared as effectually as a collar button under a chiffonier. One of the passengers was W. H. Pierce of 615 LaSalle avenue, Austin.

The crew was "green." The car company's dispatcher questioned the pair when they left the barn. Did they know the route? Of course. Hadn't they been over it once during the two days they were being "broken in?" Surely, they knew.

Fate decreed that the right switches should be open for the first mile or two of the trip.

The various twists within the loop were made true to form and the two late workers who were passengers found comfortable positions and had settled down for the first of their "forty winks" when their chariot approached Randolph street.

That was why they did not notice that the car kept right on up Clark street instead of turning west in Randolph street, as any well-behaved Chicago avenue car should have.

"End of the line! All off!"

The conductor's raucous shout woke up the two sleepers.

"Wh-what else? Wh-what line?" queried

LOCAL ELKS TAKE UP A GOOD MOVEMENT

The Grand Rapids lodge of Elks have taken up the "Big Brother Movement," and as outlined, the plan is a good one, and should be productive of results. The lodge has appointed as a committee to further the movement E. W. Ellis, L. M. Nash and George W. Mead. Following is an explanation of the matter: "The 'Big Brothers movement' in the B. P. O. Elks is, briefly stated, that each Brother Elks should take it upon himself to play the part of a Big Brother to some unfortunate little fellow who, to quote from the recommendation of the movement of Grand Exalted Ruler, August Herrmann, in his annual report to the Grand Lodge session at Atlantic City, July, 1911— "possibly for lack of right home influence, or because of evil association; or because of what is called incorrigibility, has fallen and has bit-terness in his heart, to the knowledge of the fact that he is an integral part of humanity, and that it depends, in the larger degree, upon himself whether his future be one of rectitude, making him a valuable element of society or otherwise. The work is not done by severity, nor by distrust of his sincerity, but by kindness shown to him and continued to him by his Big Brother—that is to say, by you my Brothers, and by me, and all whose hearts are not calloused, but who once were boys, and know the temptations and the dangers to which the boy is exposed."

Since this idea was first suggested to the lodge by Brother Herrmann, there has been no concerted action in the subordinate lodges to put the idea into practical operation. And this, not because our brothers are unable or unwilling to become "Big Brothers," but rather, we believe, because there has been no well-defined plan by which the boys requiring the assistance of Big Brothers could be sought out and brought to the attention and care of the Big Brothers.

Recognizing the importance of an organized effort in each subordinate lodge to protect and look after those little fellows, the Grand Lodge at its last session at Rochester, N. Y., gave its unqualified endorsement to a plan of work its furtherance of the "Big Brothers Movement," which had been adopted and put into practical operation by Hammond, Indiana, Lodge, No. 485. This plan is as follows:

Have each lodge furnish to the judge of the juvenile court, the names of all Elks, who are willing to act as Big Brothers to the unfortunate boys brought into such court. The judge then instead of committing or punishing the boy to the custody of a probation officer or other officer, should refer the boy to the lodge, and the lodge should be obliged to report to the court, or to a probation officer, the boy, or the report of the boy's conduct and progress is made by the Big Brother without the knowledge of the boy, thus eliminating the one objectionable feature of the juvenile court system, namely: the rule requiring the boy to report at stated intervals to an officer attached to the court.

The Big Brother in looking after the little brother must necessarily come in contact with the parent or parents of the boy, and thus is in a position to acquaint himself with the causes which are responsible for the boy's delinquency. It also affords the Big Brother an opportunity to help the parents of the boy by advice and suggestion to live along right lines, and to assist the parents in many ways to make it easier for the little fellow, with the aid of the Big Brother to become and be a better boy.

In many places it will be found that there are no juvenile court systems, and in many localities the number of boys brought into such courts is, fortunately, not large enough to provide work for all Elks who are willing to act the Big Brother. But the Big Brothers movement should not be confined altogether to reclaiming the bad boy. It will be found that there are many cases where little fellows whose parents are poor but deserving, should be assisted and the education and general welfare of the boy looked after by a Big Brother. The names of such boys can easily be obtained from the principals and teachers in both public and private schools.

The name, age, residence, occupation, whether married or single, and the church, if any, which the Big Brother attends. The latter information is given for the purpose of preserving the non-sectarianism of the order, and so that the Judge may, in committing the boy to the care of a Big Brother Elks, arrange so that the Big Brother will have charge of the boy whose parents are affiliated with the same church in which the Big Brother may be interested.

Following the endorsement of the above plan Grand Exalted Ruler, Brother Edward Leach, appointed the undersigned Grand Lodge committee on "Big Brothers Movement." It is the duty of this committee to present to each subordinate lodge, the plan of work first adopted by Hammond lodge, to recommend that each lodge adopt this or a similar plan of work, to recommend that the Exalted Ruler of each lodge appoint a committee of his lodge to be known as a "Committee on Big Brothers Movement," and to assist in every way in carrying out the original idea of the "Big Brothers Movement."

This movement did not originate in the Order of Elks. It has been in operation in the East, in a limited way for a number of years. Some very excellent gentlemen there have done and are doing a wonderful work. But the idea to have the B. P. O. Elks as an organization take up the "Big Brothers movement" is original with our order.

Never before in the history of the world, has a fraternal or benevolent organization undertaken such a splendid work. You can understand, brothers, the possibilities of this movement? Do you realize that we have in our glorious order 1,500 lodges, with a total membership of 500,000 men comprising the best element in our American citizenship? Think of the boys that can be saved and made better, if each and every Elk will do his duty in this one particular.

Let us then vigorously begin our work in the "Big Brothers Movement." Organize a "Big Brothers" club in your lodge. Have your committee on "Big Brothers movement" find the boys who need a Big Brother's care, and see that they get in the hands of the right "Big Brothers."

The Grand Lodge committee will be glad to receive suggestions from you, and also will be glad at any time to assist you in every possible way in the grand work of the "Big Brothers Movement."

Home Interests Menaced By Profit.

Janet Fenimore Korngold, National Lecturer for the Social Democratic party, arraigns the Profit System as inimical to the interests of Mother and Child.

"Society insists that woman fulfill her highest function as housewife and mother," says Mrs. Korngold, "but while it thus rigidly outlines her duties and obligations, it does not secure for her the means of successfully fulfilling these duties. There is no natural relation between housekeeping and motherhood. Only economic necessity and insane social traditions thrust the task of cooking upon mothers, and the duties of motherhood upon cooks."

"The average home woman spends by far the greater part of her time, not in the care and training of her children, but in the purchase and preparation of food and clothing. And in the performance of these tasks she finds our great industrial system arrayed against her."

"This is the Socialist's indictment against private industry. It makes all the necessities of life on a basis of profit, rather than upon a basis of utility. Instead of manufacturing the necessities of life to meet the needs of the people, capitalism manufactures every commodity with a view to gouging a profit out of the consumer's necessity."

"The mother of the working class must give her children food which was not made primarily to eat; she must dress them in clothing that was made to sell rather than to wear; she must shelter them in a house that was made to rent instead of to live in, for as long as our system of private ownership of industry lasts, the primary object of industry will be profit, and the secondary object utility."

"The men of the working class make all the necessities of life. Theirs is a difficult task. They are the wage earners. The women of the working class buy all the necessities of life for their families. They are the wage spenders. But if it is a difficult task to earn the average wages of the average working man in such a way that they will cover the cost of the necessities of life for an entire family."

"Socialism means the social production of the necessities of life. It means the production of food and clothing in socially-owned industries. It means their production on a basis of utility. It means the ability to secure these necessities at practically the cost of their production—profit eliminated."

"In the success of this new industrial ideal, therefore, the housewives of the working class see their emancipation from the economic and financial problems which now harass them."

In a recent editorial of the Monroe County Democrat, we find some very pointed remarks with reference to citizenship. We have had this matter up and it has come to us again and again, especially when citizenship is being conferred by the circuit court to those of foreign lands who have come to our country and east their fortunes with the rest of the people. It is true that if a great many of our citizens should attend the ceremony pursuant to the bestowing of this great privilege upon the applicants who have been heretofore subjects of other countries, they could not help but be impressed with the solemnity of the proceedings and the appreciation of the liberty which he was enjoying under this form of government.

We who have enjoyed this privilege as a birth right seem hardly to realize the great benefits derived from our form of government as it is evident on the faces of those who are made citizens by the courts, that they appreciate very highly this gift of citizenship which brings with it the great responsibility of being loyal to the government.

We ought not, however, to be un-mindful of the fact that this citizenship which we enjoy is not given merely for the purpose so we can exercise the franchise and vote, but we are expected, all of us, to consider that this citizenship imposes great responsibility and this franchise, given to the newly acquired citizens, should not be exercised by them to aid any office seeker in his little selfish sphere wherein he is making all efforts for the betterment of his own individual citizenship, regardless of what these new citizens owe to their municipality, county, state and nation.

In the city of Chicago, a large organization has taken up the project of calling mass meetings and making an effort to secure the attendance of all new citizens for the purpose of educating them in the value of good citizenship and the great good they can do for the betterment of conditions of their own people by setting a worthy example and a high mark as a loyal citizen. At these meetings they have been printing a code of rules, promulgated by Rabi Eichlers, which is termed the "Ten Commandments of Citizenship." Not only are these commandments of great value to the new citizens, but should be to the old citizens, and if every citizen in the state of Wisconsin and the nation will paste these commandments which we are printing herewith, in their hats and whenever they have a spare moment, study them over and commit them to memory, this will signify that they are interested in good citizenship, anxious to be guided by a code of rules like this, which will insure that the nation shall endure forever.

MALES IN EXCESS IN STATE

The composition and characteristics of the population of Wisconsin as reported at the thirteenth decennial census are given in an advance bulletin soon to be issued by Director Durand of the bureau of the census, department of commerce and labor. It was prepared under the supervision of W. C. Hunt, chief statistician for population.

Of the total population of Wisconsin 733,225 or 32.7 per cent. are native whites of native parentage; 1,444,761 or 44.7 per cent. are native whites of foreign or mixed parentage and 512,569 or 22 per cent. are foreign born whites. The corresponding percentages in 1900 were 28.3, 46.2 and 24.9 respectively, the proportion of native whites of native parentage having increased somewhat during the decade. There are 1,268,578 males and 1,125,282 females or 107.4 males to 100 females. In 1900 the ratio was 106.6 to 100.

The total number of persons of school age—that is, from 6 to 20 years, inclusive, is 732,544 of whom 184,629 or 66.2 per cent. attended school. In addition to these 22,287 children under 6, and 7,985 persons under 21 and over attended school. The census bureau classifies as illiterate any person 10 years of age or over who is unable to write, regardless of ability to read. There are 7,760 illiterates in the state representing 32.6 per cent. of the total population 10 years of age and over as compared with 4.7 per cent. in 1900. The percentage of literacy is mostly among the Indians, foreign born whites and negroes.

"The total number of dwellings in Wisconsin is 426,355 and the total number of families 499,629, there being 108.1 families to each 100 dwellings. The average number per dwelling is 5, and the average number per family, 4.7.

BREAKING GAME LAW

BARS HIS CITIZENSHIP

A Wood county citizen residing not far from Marshfield was refused his naturalization papers at Grand Rapids Monday because he admitted that he had violated the game law. When asked by the judge "if within the last year he had committed a crime punishable by law he said he had been arrested for killing game birds out of season. "Were you aware you were committing a crime?" asked the judge. "I know the law and took chances," answered the applicant. "You will have to wait five years longer before you can become a citizen and not then unless your conduct is better than now," said the judge as he rapped on his desk with his gavel and called out "next."—Marshfield Herald.

JUDGMENT IN "THE TRAFFIC"

"FIG." CLEAN, HE SAYS

—Wisconsin State Journal:—Among others that thronged the Fuller opera house Friday night to see "The Traffic" was Mayor Heim and Mrs. Heim.

"I saw absolutely nothing objectionable in 'The Traffic' as played last morning. 'It was a good moral sermon and a fine exposition of conditions that do exist in the big cities.' The mayor had been furnished with notices and literature on the play long before it was due to reach Madison. On his desk this morning were clean bills of health in form of letters from various high officials in Chicago. The mayor had been asked some time ago to pass judgment on the play and he refused to consider ruling it off the local stage.

"I saw no reason last night," continued the mayor, "to change my original opinion. My wife was with me. She could not believe that such things existed. I think the play was of great value educationally." Coming to Daly's Theatre soon.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

—I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Alderman in the 5th Ward, City of Grand Rapids, at the election on April 7.

Henry Yeschke.

There is a man in town who hasn't spoken to his wife for ten days. He is so mad that he doesn't go home to his meals, and all because she played a joke on him. He had for years been telling her that he had heart disease and that he would go out some night. After hearing his talk for thirteen years she finally got tired of it, and concluded to try a remedy that would prove a radical cure, (he being as healthy as a yearling.) A month ago she bought one of those rubber bags for keeping hot water to the feet, and one morning when she had the bag at her feet for a couple of hours, she thought what a joke it would be to place it on her husband's stomach, he being fast asleep and snoring. The bag held three quarts, and was as large as a cow's liver and as warm as a poultice. It hadn't been on his chest and other parts more than two minutes when he opened his eyes, raised up his head and said: "Jane, my end has come." She stuffed the upper works of her night dress into her mouth to keep from laughing, and then asked, "Which end, Charles?" At the same time unscrewing the nozzle that held the water in the bag. He cried, "My God, I am bleeding to death!" as the three quarts of hot water poured out, saturating him from head to heels. He attempted to stop the flow of blood, and she struck a light and asked him if he had not sprung a leak. He looked at the rubber bag, then went to sleep on the lounge, and now thinks his wife one of the meanest women in the world.

LOCAL ELKS TAKE UP A GOOD MOVEMENT

The Grand Rapids lodge of Elks have taken up the "Big Brother Movement," and as outlined, the plan is a good one, and should be productive of results. The lodge has appointed as a committee to further the movement, E. W. Ellis, L. M.
Nash and George W. Mead. Following is an explanation of the matter:
The "Big Brother Movement" in the B. P. O. Elks is, briefly stated, that each Brother Elk should take it upon himself to play the part of a Big Brother to some unfortunate little fellow who, to quote from the recommendation of the movement, "is in exalted ruler, August Hermann, in his annual report of the Grand Lodge session at Atlantic City, July, 1911, in session for lack of right home influence, or because of evil association, or because of what is called in-correctibility, has fallen and has bitterness in his heart, and that it depends in the largest degree, upon how whether his future be one of rectitude, making him a valuable element of society, or otherwise. The work is done by severity, not by kindness shown to him and continued to him by his Big Brother—that is to say, by you my Brothers, and by me, and by all whose hearts are not calloused, but who once were boys, and know the temptations and the dangers to which the boy is exposed."

Since this idea, Brother Hermann
there has been no concerted action to subordinate lodges to put the idea into practical operation. And this, not because our brothers are unable or unwilling to become "Big Brothers," but rather, we believe, because there has been no well-defined plan by which the boys requiring the assistance of Big Brothers could be sought out and brought to the attention and care of the Big Brothers.
Recognizing the importance of an organized effort in each subordinate lodge to protect and look after those little fellows, the Grand Lodge at its last session at Rochester, N. Y., gave its unqualified endorsement to a plan of work in furtherance of the "Big Brothers Movement," which had been adopted and put into practical operation by Hammond, Indiana, Lodge,
No. 485. This plan is as follows:
Have each lodge furnish to the judge of the juvenile court the names of all Elks, who are willing to act as Big Brothers to the unfortunate boys brought into such court. The judge then instead of committing or parol-ing the boy to the custody of a probation or other officer asks a Big Brother or Elk to look after and take care of the boy. Under this plan the little fellow is not obliged to enter the court, or to be placed in the custody of a probation or other officer, but the conduct of the boy's progress and progress is made by the Big Brother without the knowledge of the boy, thus eliminating the one objectionable feature of the juvenile court system, namely, the rule requiring the boy to report at stated intervals to an officer attached to the court.

The Big Brother in looking after the little fellow must necessarily come in contact with the parent or parents of the boy, and thus is in a position to acquaint himself with the causes which are responsible for the boy's delinquency. It also affords the Big Brother an opportunity to help the parents of the boy by advice and suggestion to live along right lines, and to assist the parents in many ways to bring the boy back to the fold, with the aid of the Big Brother to become and be a better boy.

In many places it will be found that there are no juvenile court systems, and in many localities the number of boys brought into such courts is, fortunately, not large enough to provide work for all Elks who are willing to act as Big Brothers. But the Big Brother movement should not be confined altogether to reclaiming the bad boy. It will be found that there are many cases where little fellows whose parents are poor but deserving, should be assisted and the education and general welfare of the boy looked after by a Big Brother.
The names of such boys can easily be obtained from the principals and teachers in both public and private schools.

In arranging with the various Juvenile courts, it is necessary that the judge of each court be furnished with the following information:
The name, age, residence, occupation, whether married or single, and the church, if any, which the Big Brother attends. The latter information is given for the purpose of preventing the non-sectarianism of the order, and so that the judge may, in committing the boy to the care of a Big Brother Elk, arrange so that the big brother will have charge of the boy whose parents are affiliated with the same church in which the Big Brother may be interested.

Following the endorsement of the above plan, Grand Exalted Ruler, Brother Edward Leach, appointed the undersigned Grand Lodge committee on "Big Brothers Movement." It is the duty of this committee to present to each subordinate lodge, the plan of work first adopted by Hammond lodge, to recommend that each lodge adopt this or a similar plan of work, to recommend that the Exalted Ruler of his lodge be "a down and out" committee on Big Brothers movement," and to assist in every way in carrying out the original idea of the "Big Brothers Movement."

This movement did not originate in the Order of Elks. It has been in operation in the East, in a limited way for a number of years. Some very excellent gentlemen there have done and are doing a wonderful work.
But the idea to have the B. P. O. Elks as an organization take up the "Big Brothers Movement" is original with our order.

Never before in the history of the order, has a fraternal or benevolent organization undertaken such a splendid work. Can you understand, brothers, the possibilities of this movement? Do you realize that we have in our glorious order 1,500 lodges, with a total membership of 500,000 men, comprising the best element in our American citizenship?

Think of the boys that can be saved and made better, if each and every Elk will do his duty in this one particular.

Let us then vigorously begin our work in the "Big Brothers Movement." Organize a "Big Brothers" club in your lodge. Have your committee on "Big Brothers movement" find the boys who need a Big Brother's care, and see that they get in the hands of the right "Big Brothers."

The Grand Lodge committee will be glad to receive suggestions from you, and assist you in every possible way in the grand work of the "Big Brothers Movement."

Home Enemies Menaced By Profit.

Janet Penimore Korgold, National Lecturer for the Social Democratic party, arraigns the Profit System as inimical to the interests of Mother and Child.

"Society insists that woman fulfills her highest function as housewife and mother," says Mrs. Korgold,
"but while it thus rights out, it lines her duties and obligations, it does not spare her the means or successfully fulfilling these duties.
There is no natural relation between housekeeping and motherhood.
Only economic necessity and insane social traditions thrust the task of cooking upon mothers, and the duties of motherhood upon cooks."

"The average home woman spends by far the greater part of her time, not in the care and training of her children, but in the purchase and preparation of food and clothing.
And in the performance of these tasks
she finds our great industrial system arrayed against her."

"This is the Socialist's indictment against private industry. It makes all the necessities of life on a basis of profit, rather than upon a basis of utility. Instead of manufacturing the necessities of life, capitalism manufactures every commodity with a view to gouging a profit out of the consumer's necessity."

"The mother of the working class must give her children food which was not made primarily to eat; she must dress them in clothing that was made to sell rather than to wear;
she must shelter them in a house that was made to rent instead of to live in, for as long as our system of private ownership of the industry lasts, the primary object of industry will be profit, and the secondary object utility."

"The men of the working class make all the necessities of life.
Theirs is a difficult task. They are the wage earners. The women of the working class buy all the necessities of life for their families. They are the wage spenders. But if it is difficult for the wage earners to earn the wages of the average working man in such a way that they will cover the cost of the necessities of life for an entire family.

"Socialism means the social production of the necessities of life. It means the production of food and clothing in socially-owned industries.
It means their production on a basis of utility. It means the ability to secure these necessities at practically the cost of their production—profit eliminated."

"In the success of this new industrial ideal, therefore, the housewives of the working class see their emancipation from the economic and financial pressures which now harass them."

CITIZENSHIP.

In a recent editorial of the Monroe County Democrat, we find some very pointed remarks with reference to citizenship. We have had this matter brought up and it has come to us again and again, especially when citizenship is being conferred by the circuit court to those of foreign lands who have come to our country and cast their lot with the rest of the people. It is true that if a great many of our citizens should attend the ceremony pursuant to the bestowing of this great privilege, the number of those of other countries, they could not help but be impressed with the solemnity of the proceedings and the appreciation of the liberty which he was enjoying under this form of government.

We who have enjoyed this privilege as a birth right seem hardly to realize the great benefit, regardless of our own race, that he who comes from out of the faces of those who are made citizens by the courts, that they appreciate, very highly this gift of citizenship which brings with it the great responsibility of being loyal to the government.

We ought not, however, to be unmindful of the fact that this citizenship which we enjoy is not given merely for the purpose so we can exercise the franchise and vote, but we are expected, all of us, to consider that this citizenship imposes great responsibility and this franchise, given to the newly acquired citizens, should not be exercised by them to aid any office seeker in his little selfish sphere wherein he is making all efforts for the betterment of his own individual citizenship, regardless of the welfare of the citizens of the municipality, county, state and nation.

In the city of Chicago, a large organization has taken up the project of calling mass meetings and making an effort to secure the attendance of all new citizens for the purpose of educating them in the value of good citizenship and the great good they can do for the betterment of conditions of their own people by setting a worthy example and a high mark as a loyal citizen. At these meetings they have been printing a code of rules, promulgated by Rabi Eichlers, which is termed the "Ten Commandments of Citizenship." Not only are these commandments of great value to the new citizens, but should be to the old citizens, and if every citizen in the state of Wisconsin, and the nation at large, these commandments which we are printing herewith, in their hats and whenever they have a spare moment, study them over and commit them to memory, this will signify that they are interested in good citizenship, anxious to be guided by a code of rules like this, which will insure that the nation shall endure forever.

BREAKING GAME LAW

BARS HIS CITIZENSHIP

A Wood county citizen residing not far from Marshfield was refused his naturalization papers at Grand Rapids Monday because he admitted that he had violated the game law. When asked by the judge if within the last year he had committed a crime punishable by law, he said that he had been arrested for killing game birds out of season. "Were you aware you were committing a crime?" asked the judge. "I know the law and took chances," answered the applicant.
"You will have to wait five years longer before you can become a citizen and not then unless your conduct is better than now," said the judge as he rang on his desk with his gavel and called out "next."

MAYOR HEIM PASSES JUDGMENT IN "THE TRAFFIC." "CLEAN, HE SAYS"

—Wisconsin State Journal.—Among other things that thronged the Fuller opera house Friday night to see "The Traffic" was Mayor Heim and Mrs.
Heim.

"I saw absolutely nothing objectionable in 'The Traffic' as played last morning. It was a good moral sermon and a fine exposition of conditions that do exist in the big cities."

The mayor had been flustered with notness and nervousness on the play before it was due to reach his desk. On his desk this morning were clean bills of health in form of letters from various high officials in Chicago. The mayor had been asked some time ago to pass judgment on the play and he refused to consider ruling it off the local stage.

"I saw no reason last night," continued the mayor, "to change my original opinion. My wife was with me. She could not believe that such things existed. I think the play was of great value educationally." Coming to Daly's Theatre soon.

oil. He struck it rich. It was by accident that Helen's whereabouts were discovered. When he learned of her he at once sent for her to come and be his adopted daughter.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

—I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Alderman in the 5th Ward, City of Grand Rapids, at the election on April 7th.

Henry Yeschke.

There is a man in town who hasn't spoken to his wife for ten days. He is so mad that he doesn't go home to his meals, and all because she played a joke on him. He had for years been telling her that he had heart disease and that he would go into her arms. After hearing his talk for thirteen years she finally got tired of it, and concluded to try a remedy that would prove a radical cure, (he being as healthy as a yearling.) A month ago she bought one of those rubber bags for keeping hot water to the feet, and one morning when she had the bag at her feet for a couple of hours, she thought what a joke it would be to place it on her husband's stomach, "he being fast asleep and snoring." The bag held three quarts, and was as large as a cow's liver and as warm as a poultice.
It hadn't been on his chest and other parts more than two minutes when he opened his eyes, raised up his head and said: "Jane, my end has come. She stuffed the hot water works of her night dress into her mouth to keep from laughing, and then asked, "Which end, Charles?" at the same time unscrewing the nozzle that held the water in the bag.
He cried, "My God, I am bleeding to death!" as the three quarts of hot water poured out, saturating him from head to heels. He attempted to stop the flow of blood, and she struck a light and asked him if he had not a rubber bag. He looked at the rubber bag, then went to sleep on the lounge, and now thinks his wife one of the meanest women in the world.

“SAFETY FIRST” MOVEMENT

An event of prime importance to the citizens of Grand Rapids, one of more than usual interest is billed at the Ideal Theater for next Friday evening and Saturday afternoon the 27th and 28th inst. Mr H L Brownell, head of the Bureau of Safety of the Chicago City Railways Co will show the three-reel moving pictures which the Chicago City Railways Co procured at a very large expense, illustrating the manner in which accidents occur on the streets of Chicago through pedestrian being caught by street cars, automobiles and traffic. No moving pictures are quite so thrilling and intensely interesting as these and the people of Grand Rapids are indebted to the Safety First Committee of the Consolidated Mill for the instructive and educational opportunity.

The Safety First Movement is sweeping the country. All lines of manufacturing industry—street railways, steam railways, steamship companies—are giving their best attention to the matter of the prevention of the loss of life loss of limbs and loss of wages through accidents. It will probably be news to the great majority of people in Grand Rapids to learn that there is in the Consolidated Mill a committee of five men known as the Safety First Committee. This committee has already made a thorough investigation of the mill and has made several splendid safety first recommendations which the management has approved and ordered. The members of the Safety First Committee are as follows: Mrs G O Stearns Chairman, Mr Geo Hatten Secretary, Mr Mr Henry Alpine, Mr Fred Levermore, Mr Mark Whitlock.

This Safety First Committee is to be congratulated on being able to bring to a point in a specific and such a significant thing to the city. Every citizen should see these pictures and learn the truth about the splendor of the safety first movement.

The Carl Kronholm home and other buildings had a close call on Sunday. Just as the family returned from church the fire was discovered in the house up stairs and there was a fire which had burned a hole in the floor and by some of Oscar Kronholm's clothing. It was a really close call and it is found that the fire was started by a candle which was blowing in a draft from the ceiling. The entire floor buildings would have been wiped out if the fire had not been put out just when they did.

Mrs. Kruschke and her son returned home on Sunday afternoon and found that the fire had started in the kitchen. Mr and Mrs. Kruschke and their son returned home on Sunday afternoon and found that the fire had started in the kitchen.

SEWER GAS GHOSTS.

In the 'good old days' ghosts were frequently invented to have something upon which to hang responsibility for devility which was in no wise of spiritual origin. Modern sanitarians are coming to look upon sewer gas as a ghost with a similar pedigree. What is called sewer gas is, in reality only the air of sewers, it smells bad. Smells however don't cause disease. Experiments have demonstrated that sewer air is apt to be purer as regards germs than ordinary street air. Whatever gases are given off are in too small quantities to cause disease.

Sewer gas has been, and still is, popularly held to be responsible for typhoid fever, measles, diphtheria, scarlet fever, dysentery and other infectious diseases. We are certain that all these diseases are due to germs. The germs of typhoid fever and dysentery are occasionally present in sewage. It's a mistake to think they multiply or even thrive there. Germs are solid matter. As such they are not apt to be taken up by the air of sewers. Nobody would suggest that wet mud will give off dust.

Throughout history, man has sought reasons for natural phenomena not readily understood. The less he knows the more easily is he satisfied with unreasonable explanation. Some popular explanations of disease are as ridiculous as the "sewer gas" explanation of typhoid fever.

The term "sewer gas" sounds mysterious and suggests poisoning. There is certain plausibility about it, but it is not a disease which is not easily explained on other grounds. When we know, however, that probably all infectious diseases are of germ origin and something of the nature and habits of germs (the old theory of miasma) is not a disease which is not easily explained on other grounds. When we know, however, that probably all infectious diseases are of germ origin and something of the nature and habits of germs (the old theory of miasma) is not a disease which is not easily explained on other grounds.

The Manitowish Herald hits the straight facts when it asserts that "the man who keeps abreast of the times must advertise his business; the corporation which is seeking public patronage must advertise, and in fact any project which is to be a success can only prove a success after a comprehensive advertising campaign." Truth crushed to earth will rise again.

—Lucky Sam is a good cigar with a long tilter. It's only a nickel, and has lots of the ten centers beaten.

The state board of health on Wednesday made first shipments of silver nitrate from Madison to physicians and midwives of the state, as provided by a law passed at the last legislative. Each package cost twenty-four annulars of five and a package of ten for a few drops of the one per cent. solution of the salt. The medicine is used to pierce the end of the amputee then permits a few drops to be squeezed out. One drop is sufficient for each eye of the new born child.

According to the Anti-Saloon league year book for 1914, just issued, there was one saloon for every 195 people in Wisconsin in 1912. The saloons in the state at the beginning of 1913 were 2,922, and the average license fee a little over $240. There was 12 dry cities, 12 dry villages, and 747 dry and 512 wet towns. Of the towns, 234 were voted dry, and in 436 there had never been an application for license. Twenty-five per cent of the state's population, according to the book, is under no-license administration.

Nekoosa Times.—Up to last Friday evening all told forty-two houses or establishments in Nekoosa had been wired for electricity. Of this number Joseph Staub, of the Grand Rapids electrician, was contractor for thirty-eight, and he has yet to hear the first complaint from any. In addition Mr. Staub installed a twenty-horse power electric motor for Robert Beppler, which was placed in his flour and feed mill near the depot. With a large majority of our business houses lighted with electricity, the time before when people are aware of their condition they will possess all of the necessities and conveniences and many of the luxuries of a modern city.

Vesper State Center.—J. Bugenhagen, a town of Hansen farmer, met with a very unfortunate accident Tuesday when he had his left hand cut off by a wood saw. The accident happened about eleven o'clock on the Matt Barth farm. He was working as second man at the saw, and as strange as it may seem, the head man at the saw did not see the accident nor did any of the men about. It is thought he must have slipped forward in some manner. The men managed to get a good twist on the arm to prevent loss of blood. Lee Hotman drove him to town in time to catch the 12:35 train to Grand Rapids. Dr. Whitehorn went down on the train with them. Mr. Bugenhagen was taken to Riverview hospital where Drs. Whitehorn and Waters amputated the arm just below the elbow. Mr. Bugenhagen is 60 years of age. While these accidents are deplorable at best, yet a man of his age can endure the consequences better than if the unfortunate lot had fallen to one of his sons.

Plant Trees.

Now is the time to put in your trees. Every property owner should see to it that there are the requisite number of trees in the parking round his lot. Every street in the city should have a continuous line of shade trees on both sides, thereby adding to the beauty of the city and the comfort of the wayfarer on hot summer days.

Do not delay this matter of tree planting—trees are necessarily of slow growth, hence get them in as soon as possible. The Park Commissioners are not only interested in the parks but in the appearance of our city as a whole, and they are very anxious that trees be planted wherever a property, but they are most anxious that each lot owner keep up his premises as best he possibly can. We will be glad to furnish you with information as to buying and setting out of trees, and we sincerely hope that each season will see an added number of trees and shrubs.

A Long Drawn Out Case.

The case of the R. Connor company versus the Wisconsin Central Ry., is now on trial at the court house, and the indications are that it will last for some time yet.

In this case the Connor Company is suing the railroad for damages from fire that occurred in the village of Auburndale some eight years ago, in which a section of the village was burned. It is claimed that the fire started from the engines of the defendant company and that consequently they are responsible for the loss above the insurance. The insurance company that paid a part of the loss is also suing the railroad company.

Death of Mrs. Mary Compton.

(Contributed.)

The death of Mrs. Mary Compton formerly of Rudolph and Nekosha, occurred on March 19, at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Moore, in Plainfield, Wisconsin, which had been Mrs. Compton's home for a few years past. She was confined to her bed the last two months although her illness covered a period of nearly two years duration. Having undergone two serious operations at different times at Riverview hospital in this city. Her children, William Compton and wife of DeKalb, Illinois, Clarence Compton and wife and her son Elmer were in constant attendance during the last weeks of her life. No more beautiful tribute could be paid to anyone than that expressed by the devotion and loving care shown Mrs. Compton by her children and two grandchildren.

The funeral and burial services were held on Saturday, the 21st at Plainfield, Wis., L. B. Calmen officiating. She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, and entered fully into its interests, a clear minded christian woman. She lived a brave, patient, noble life, loyal to her friends and faithful to every duty.

Her entrance into the life beyond was full of peace, and though here the loneliness remains, for her is only thankfulness.

Interesting Corn Test.

As a matter of interest to the farmer some of the corn which has been on exhibit at the First National bank, was tested for size and weight. In each case an ear of average size was selected—not the largest nor the smallest, and the results are somewhat astonishing. In the table below after the name of the corn, is given the length of the ear, the weight before shelling, and the weight of shelled corn.

Pure Bred Golden	in. 8.48 oz. 71.58 oz.
Sankey's Best	in. 8.02 oz. 68.02 oz.
Min. Early Yellow	in. 6.08 oz. 55.88 oz.
Oral	in. 7.14 oz. 67.58 oz.

The above are the statements of the College of Agriculture regarding the excellence of Golden Glow corn which they have been breeding for the past 12 years, and inasmuch as it has been bred especially for this latitude it will probably become the standard corn for Central Wisconsin.

Of the 255 Holstein-Friesian cows recently admitted to the Advanced Registry of the breed and listed in the latest report received from the superintendent of the Advanced Registry, thirty-two or approximately twenty-four were owned in Wisconsin. All but five of these were bred within the state. One other cow that was accepted for entry was also bred in Wisconsin and later sold outside the state. The average production of all the cows, of which about one-half were heifers with their first or second calf, was 407.3 pounds of milk, testing 1.51 per cent of fat and containing 12.54 pounds of butter fat, equal to 16 pounds of butter.

The Melrose Times has hit upon a new idea of giving news. Instead of publishing items from the files of 20 years ago it publishes them 20 years ahead. Here is one of the items: "The local Ford agency received eight car loads of Ford cars last week. These cars are for the most part spoken for. The price of the new cars with coil spring tires is $80.00. Equipped with self-starter and electric lights, $100."

"SAFETY FIRST" MOVEMENT

An event of prime importance to the citizens of Grand Rapids, one of more than usual interest, is being at the Ideal Theater for next Friday evening and Saturday afternoon, the 27th and 28th inst. Mr. H. L. Brown, head of the Bureau of Safety of the Chicago City Railways Co., will show the three-reel moving pictures which the Chicago City Railways Co. procured at a very large expense, illustrating the danger to the safety of the streets of Chicago, and the danger to the lives of pedestrians being caught by street cars, automobiles and traffic. No moving pictures are quite so thrilling and intensely interesting as these, and the people of Grand Rapids are indebted to the Safety First Committee of the Consolidated Mill for this instructive and educational opportunity.

The "Safety First" Movement is sweeping the country. All lines of commerce, the country—street railways, steam railways, steamship companies—are giving their best attention to the matter of the prevention of the loss of life, loss of limbs and loss of wages through accidents. It will probably be news to the great majority of people in Grand Rapids to learn that there is in the city a committee of five men known as the "Safety First" Committee. This committee has already made a thorough investigation of the mill and has made several splendid "Safety First" recommendations, which the management has approved and ordered. The members of the Safety First Committee are as follows: Mrs. Geo. Sherman, Chairman, Mr. Geo. Hutton, Secretary, Mr. Henry Alpin, Mr. Fred Levermore, Mr. Mark Whitlock.

This Safety First Committee is to be congratulated on being able to bring to so prominent a speaker and such magnificent films to the city.

Every citizen should see these pictures and hear Mr. Brown explain them.

The Carl Krohnholm home and other buildings had a close call my fire on Sunday. Just as the family returned from church, fire was discovered in the house up stairs and there was a nice blaze which had burned a hole in the floor and also some of the ceiling. It was about 11:30 when the fire was discovered. The wind was blowing in such a direction that the entire farm buildings would have been wiped out if the family had not returned just when they did.

Mrs. Kraus and children returned home on Tuesday from Chilton where they have been visiting relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Mros of Coleman are expected here this week for a brief visit with relatives and friends.

Earl Atkins spent Wednesday at Rudolph.

A large number from here attended the auction at Rudolph on Thursday.

Mrs. Jack Sternol, visited her daughter in your city the first of the week.

B. Y. P. S. met at the Wm. Crumsted home on Thursday night with a large crowd in attendance. Mr. and Mrs. M. and Mrs. Jim Chapinski a baby girl last Wednesday.

Misses Bardena and Ploy Berg spent Sunday of last week at the Combs home at Sherry.

Miss Huldah Holstrom is home from Biron where she has been employed.

Mrs. Anton Jones is reported to be on the sick list.

Eric Pearson visited at the Klappo home last week, a guest of Miss Fannia.

August Kromenacker spent Monday at Milladore.

Arvid Anderson is home from Rudolph where he has been employed at the Whitman farm for the past year.

Nearly a Holdup.

Frank Barden, who is employed at the Biron mill, was among the callers at the Tribune office on Saturday, and while here related a queer experience which he had on Friday evening while returning to Biron from this city. It was about 11:30 o'clock and Mr. Barden had reached a point about three miles from town, when he was stopped by a man who asked him for money. The man was not particularly polite in his request, and he did not display a weapon of any kind, and when Mr. Barden refused his request the stranger stated that he would take it anyway. Mr. Barden pulled off his coat and told him to come on, at the same time pulling out a knife to defend himself. The man made one swipe at Mr. Barden and then made off without continuing the argument any further, while Mr. Barden resumed his discarded coat and continued on his way to Biron. He is of the opinion that the man was a tramp who thought he could pick up a little change with very little effort, but found he was mistaken.

North Dakota farmers on the Great Northern Dairy Special recently visiting some of Wisconsin's noted dairy farms, commented at length upon the community co-operation everywhere apparent in connection with it, the familiarity with production records, value of animals, etc. shown by business men in the dairy localities. Another significant observation they made in relation to the College of Agriculture, was the progressive team-work of the staff, the effects of which are continually being realized in other states as well as in Wisconsin.

Lady Paul Livardy 3rd, owned by J. W. Dimick, R. 10th, N. Y. has broken the Holstein-Friesian record for fat production in the junior two-year class of the semi-official yearly display. She produced in 365 consecutive days 20,326.7 pounds of milk containing 726.66 pounds of fat. The test was supervised by eight different men.

The veterinary and dairy cattle department of the Wisconsin Experiment Station do not as yet recommend the use of mothyline blue, in any form, for the treatment of contagious abortion of cattle. Dr. F. A. Rich of the Vermont station, in his bulletin 174, reports startling success in the internal treatment of this disease with mothyline blue, but authorities are not at all certain that its general use should be advised until more complete and practical experimental data is obtained.

HEALTH

In the "good old days" ghosts were frequently invented to have something upon which to hang responsibility for devility which was in no wise of spiritual origin. Modern sanitarians are coming to look upon sewer gas as a ghost with a similar pedigree. What is called sewer gas is, in reality, only the air of sewers. It smells bad. Smells however don't cause disease. Experiments have demonstrated, that sewer air is apt to be purer, as regards germs, than ordinary street air. Whatever gases are given off are in too small quantities to cause disease.

Sewer gas has been, and still is, popularly held to be responsible for typhoid fever, measles, diphtheria, scarlet fever, typhus, and other infectious diseases. We are certain that these diseases are due to germs. The germs of typhoid fever and dysentery are occasionally present in sewage. It's a mistake to think they multiply or even thrive there. Germs are solid matter. As such, they are not apt to be taken up by the air of sewers. Nobody would suggest that wet mud will give off dust.

Throughout history, man has sought reasons for natural phenomena not readily understood. The less he knows the more easily he is satisfied with unreasonable explanations. Some popular explanations of disease are as ridiculous as the savage's explanation of fire, for example.

The term "sewer gas" sounds mysterious and suggests poisoning. There is a certain plausibility about attributing to it diseases which is not easily explained on other grounds. When we know, however, that probably all infectious diseases are of germ origin and something of the nature and habits of germs, the old theories concerning sewer gas will not hold. Further, it is an interesting fact that workmen employed in large sewer systems are rather more than ordinarily strong and healthy.

Attributing contagious diseases at least to sewer gas, is a short cut. It satisfies only those people who are too lazy to, or can't think.

Ghosts disappeared when people took to chasing them with the question mark. The question mark is going to raise havoc with the sewer gas bugbear amongst other disease superstitions.

Sparrows Good Human Food.

English sparrows are pronounced by United States experts on ornithology to be a perfect substitute for feed birds as a food. It is suggested that by trapping sparrows, an excellent food could be supplied for the poor man's table; this would help to reduce a bird pest, for the English sparrow has long been recognized as an enemy of many birds that are the farmer's friends.

"SICKED" WIND ON HIS RIVAL

Fervent Supplication May Have Had No Effect, but It Surely Came From the Heart.

When the minstrel show reached town in Alabama, there was barely time for the usual street parade. Awaiting the company at the depot was a large reception committee of darkies. Every darky in the crowd was anxious to get the job carrying one of the show banners, not alone for the sake of the free pass paid in exchange for the duty, but for the added glory of taking part in the procession. This was a small and struggling troupe, however, which boasted only one banner—a large ornate square of imitation red silk. A big negro grabbed it as the property man passed it off the car, and clung to it, lighting off all opposition. As he started proudly up the street, with the flagpole resting proudly in the pit of his stomach, a stiff breeze caught the banner and it billowed like a sail, almost dragging the color-bearer off his feet and forcing him to tack and jibe to keep from being capsized bodily. Observing his plight, a disappointed candidate for the job raised his voice in invocation from the sidewalk. "Stick him, wind!" he yelled. "Stick him!"

Willing to Do Something.

A few days after he had purchased the horse he returned with it, highly indignant, demanding satisfaction. He declared the poor brute had every disease and infirmity under heaven, and its appearance bore out his statement to some extent. After telling the former owner all this and denouncing him as a scoundrel, he concluded: "Now, I want to know what you're going to do about it?" "Something ought to be done. That's a fact," said the other calmly. "Well, I should say there had." "Well, I'll give you the name of a good veterinarian. It's a shame to have that horse suffer in that way."

A CLERGYMAN'S TESTIMONY.

The Rev. Edmund Heslop of Wigan, Pa., suffered from Dropsy for a year. His limbs and feet were swollen and puffed. He had heart fluttering, was dizzy and exhausted at the least exertion. Hands and feet were cold and he had such a dragging sensation across the loins that it was difficult to move.

After using a box of Dods Kidney Pills the swelling disappeared and he felt himself again. He says he has been benefited and blessed by the use of Dods Kidney Pills. Several months later he wrote: "I have not changed my faith in your remedy since the above statement was authorized. Correspond with Rev. E. Heslop about this wonderful remedy."

Dods Kidney Pills, 60c. per box at your dealer or Dods Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Write for Household Hints, also music of National Anthem (English and German words) and recipes for dainty dishes. All sent free, Adv.

His "Melody" Unappreciated.

Early during his struggle for fame, Al Johnson, musical comedy star, was a member of a small opera company. "I just a pretty fair voice," says the comedian, "and to give volume to our small chorus I would stand in the wings and help out. One night just as I was wading my best, the manager of the troupe tripped up behind me and heard me sing."

PLAN FUTURE PEACE

STATE DEPARTMENT SEEKS TO PREVENT TROUBLES IN COUNTRIES TO THE SOUTH.

TO WEIGH BARRETT'S IDEA

Government Officials Are Anxious to Arrange Some Plan of Concerted Action to Prevent War Among Our Neighbors.

By GEORGE CLINTON.

Washington.—While it may be too late to be of service in saving the menacing Mexican situation, the officials of the state department are studying a plan by means of which it may be possible to prevent troubles of like kind in the future. The plan which the officials, presumably by the sanction of the administration, have under study is one which was suggested during the Roosevelt administration, but to which no attention was paid during the "Taft time."

It is possible, and it may not be according to Democratic pride to say it is probable, that the Washington officials have been spurred to the study of the new means of keeping turbulent Spanish-American Republics under control by the reports of the sympathetic and enthusiastic reception which has been given in great South American countries to recent words of Theodore Roosevelt who has been talking to the Spanish-Americans on various economic and political subjects.

Recently John Barrett, director general of the Pan-American Union, who knows how all the diplomats of all the South and Central American countries feel on most political subjects, suggested that counsel be taken with the more powerful governments to the south of us with a view to concerted action which might have potent influence in settling the present Mexican difficulty.

Looking to the Future.

Mr. Barrett's suggestion of course went far beyond the present Mexican trouble and was intended as advice which, if followed, might prevent such troubles in the future. No attention was paid to the director general for some little time, for a man with an idea sometimes has a hard time getting a hearing. It seems now, however, that attention is to be paid to what Mr. Barrett has said and his suggestion will be allowed to lose nothing of its force with Democracy because it happens to be a kindred suggestion to one made a long while ago by Theodore Roosevelt.

Only on one occasion of any note has the United States government asked South and Central American governments to use their moral suasion to prevent trouble among their neighbors. A few years ago when hostilities were threatened between Honduras and Nicaragua, Mexico was requested by the United States to ask the belligerents to "remember their duty to each and to the rest of America." Mexico, then under a different leader, than it is today, was proud of the mission given into its hands. It acted, and Honduras and Nicaragua kissed and made up.

Last fall the Washington dispatches told of the interest that congress was showing in what Theodore Roosevelt said at Rio de Janeiro concerning the participation of Central and South American countries in the work of carrying out the Monroe doctrine.

Long before he talked to the Brazilians, and when he was president of the United States, Mr. Roosevelt sent his secretary of state, Elihu Root, to the Spanish-American countries to talk to them along lines similar to those which he is now following himself.

Solve Many Problems.

The matters concerning which Mr. Roosevelt as president, and later as traveler, and Mr. Root as secretary of state, spoke to the Central and South American countries concerned themselves almost wholly with the Monroe doctrine. But afterward Mr. Root in correspondence with the stronger countries of the South suggested that concerted action between the United States and the countries addressed might solve many problems and keep the peace when war was threatened.

The Roosevelt-Root suggestion was known as the "monitor nation" plan and the matter was thoroughly discussed with representatives of the stable Latin-American countries.

Under the Taft administration, this "monitor nation" plan was forgotten. At no time during the trouble with Mexico has there been shown any disposition on the part of the administration or the state department to ask Brazil, Argentina, Chile or any other South American country to aid the United States in its attempts to straighten out things in Mexico.

John Barrett's suggestion of some little time ago was ignored at first, but now it is likely to receive attention. It is possible that the government officials may find some means to make it of service in the present time. They are extraordinarily anxious to find a way out of the Mexican trouble without intervention, and it is conceivable that the office of the director general of the Pan-American building has come the hint of a method of relief and release.

Legislation for Women.

There has just gone into effect in the District of Columbia an eight-hour law for working women. No woman in this district, hereafter, unless engaged in domestic service, is to be allowed to work longer than eight hours a day, and she must rest for one full day each week.

JUDGE READY WITH ANSWER

Lord Mansfield, at a Loss With One Explanation, Was Quickly There With Another.

Here is a story from "Law and Laughter." Lord Mansfield was trying a case in which an old man named Elm, who was upwards of eighty, gave his evidence with remarkable clearness. It turned out that he had been through life an early riser and had led a singularly temperate life.

New Fad in Dating Letters.

Perhaps the last thing in the world over which the vagaries of fashion might be expected to exercise any influence is in regard to such an everyday practice as the style of dating letters. Yet even here fads and fancies have their sway. A new fancy is said to be the elimination of the date of the month altogether, simply giving the day of the year. For instance, March 1 would be represented by "00-1914," while for New Year's Eve "365-1914," would be used.

MARION AND HARRY

By JOHN HAND.

Kitty met Marion Haynes at the door.

"Why, Marion, dear, this seems too dear to be true," she said. "And now that I've got you here I am not going to let you go home for a whole month at least."

The girls had been inseparable at college, but they had graduated at the same time, five years before, and since then they had not seen each other, for they lived in towns nearly a hundred miles apart. Gradually the exchange of letters had dwindled, and in spite of their continued affection they had become reconciled to the separation.

Then Kitty had seemed to discover a new interest in her friend. She had written to her to come and spend a week or two with her, and had insisted until Marion came.

That evening, when the girls were alone, Kitty said:

"Marion, I have a secret to tell you." Marion's eyes instantly fell to the level of Kitty's lap. But the engagement finger had no ring on it.

"We haven't spoken a word of love as yet," Kitty continued, "but I am very fond of Harry, and I know he cares for me. Now, Marion, you remember when we were at college we promised never to have any secrets from each other. Has there been any romance in your own life?"

Marion remained dumb. Some things are too fragile to be told.

"You see, about Harry and me," Kitty prattled on—"he had always been a chameleon." "It is this way. I met him through our mutual friends the Fernleys, six months ago, and we liked each other from the first minute. And he was so interesting; he had had an unhappy love affair a couple of years ago. Mr. Lamont was wildly in love with some girl or other, and she jilted him."

Marion sat as still as though she had been turned to stone. Harry Lamont! She ought to have known that fate had not brought her there for no purpose.

"It was very sad," Kitty continued artlessly. "This girl and Harry were wildly in love with each other, and they would have been married long ago but for the misunderstanding—such an absurd one, too. Harry is a lawyer, and he had been defending some actress who was charged with having committed perjury in a notorious case. Harry succeeded in having her acquitted, and she wrote him an absurd, gushing, hysterical letter. He mailed it to his sweetheart by mistake. Isn't it dreadful to think how the happiness of a lifetime can hinge upon a trifle like that? The girl returned it to him with a scathing note and refused to listen to any explanations. All his letters were sent back unopened. She refused to see him when he called at her house. They have never met since. Don't you pity him, Marion?"

"Yes," said Marion in a low voice. "And now at last he is going to be happy again," Kitty went on, "and I know—well, I know that within a few days I shall have an engagement to announce. And, Marion, dear, he is coming to call tonight and I wanted so much to have you meet him."

Marion sat staring into the fire. She was trapped, fairly trapped. To run away was impossible; it would not only mortally affront Kitty, but would tell her secret. And it would show Harry that she was afraid of him. How miserable she had been over that affair! For months she had struggled with the impulse to write to him, but her pride was too strong for her. And now—how foolish she had been!

Well, there was nothing to do but to meet him brazenly, and for Kitty's sake no word must pass that would betray them.

A ring at the bell, and Kitty started up excitedly.

"That's Harry!" she exclaimed. "And I haven't got ready. Marion, I can't—I simply can't let him see me with my hair like this. You must entertain him for five minutes till I am ready." And she flew up the stairs just as the maid announced the guest.

They knew each other at once, and stood dumbly watching each other, each conscious of the same bewildering surprise and pain. Then Marion found herself murmuring the conventional words of greeting.

"Sit down, Mr. Lamont," she said. "Kitty won't be long. I'll go and see to it."

"Marion," said the man in a low voice, "it is no use playing with each other like this. For God's sake tell me what you are going to do."

"What I am going to do?" Marion found herself automatically repeating. "Why, Harry—the word broke upon me—telling you from her lips—I am not going to do anything. For Kitty's sake no mention of the past must be made. We have met for the first time; we Unlucky Better Had All His Attention Centered on Remarks That His Wife Was Making.

They were talking about the race track, and when the man with the Van Dyke beard mentioned the fact that he had seen his first horse race only the day before, the old race goer with the gray beard leaned over and queried:

"Didn't you think it great sport?" "Yes," he slowly admitted, but his looks belied his words.

"Mighty exciting, isn't it?" continued the first speaker enthusiastically.

"Yes, it certainly is," was the quiet answer.

"So that was your first race, eh?" "The very first, sir, and my last, too. I'm thinking."

"But you can't possibly mean that? You certainly must have enjoyed such rare sport?"

"At first—yes."

"When the horses got away at the post didn't it make your hair stand up?"

"Seems to me it did."

"And as they came up on the home stretch, neck and neck, could you contain yourself?"

"I—I managed to."

"That's funny," mused the old race goer with a cold look at the other. "Say, now, honestly, when the people rose up and shouted as in one voice weren't you carried away with enthusiasm?"

"Well, the fact is," replied he with the Van Dyke beard, as if he thought some explanation should be given, "the fact is I wasn't listening to the shouts of the crowd or paying much attention to the horses after the first race."

"You—you weren't?" gasped the other in astonishment.

"No, sir. You see, I lost five dollars on the first race, and all I heard after that were the remarks of my wife concerning that fiver!"

Dr. Johnson's Dictionary.

Dr. Johnson's ignorance of derivations led him into absurdities of spelling that were admitted even by Boswell. Dr. Johnson's methods in tracing etymologies were of the simplest. "This is a great work, sir," said Dr. Adams to him. "How are you to get all the etymologies?" "Why, sir," replied Johnson, "there is a shelf with Junius and Skinner and others, and there is a Welsh gentleman who has published a collection of Welsh proverbs who will help me with the Welsh." And so the famous dictionary was written, with little assistance from the learned, as the dictionary maker himself complained. That little came from a man who sent him a list of 30 derivations.

His Lonesomeness.

"Why, Mr. Clarke," said the boarding-house mistress, as she entered the parlor and found the young man alone, "what ever is the trouble?"

"Nothing," was the reply. "I was sitting here with the creatures of my brain for company," and the budding author looked at the visitors accompanying the woman with something like resentment for the interruption.

"You poor thing," said the woman, earnestly. "I said to myself as I opened the door, 'If he don't look lonesome, then I never saw a man that did!'"—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

Literary Office Holders.

"Among living English literary men who have taken the king's shilling," says the London Express, "are Mr. Edmund Gosse, librarian of the house of lords; Mr. W. W. Jacobs, who was in the postoffice; Mr. Sidney Webb, who was in the colonial office; Mr. Austin Dobson, who was at the board of trade, and Sir Sidney Colvin, who is, an official at the British museum."

Coincidences.

"Managers are complaining that it is so hard to get a good chorus to gether."

"Well, didn't you read about the impending lobster famine?"

Some men are so constituted that they will yield to nothing except temptation.

End of Napoleon's Glory.

Keep Pegging Away

It is not what we can do by spasms of hard work or saving that will count—it is what we do regularly seven days in a week, twelve months in each year, that brings the real results.

The man who saves five dollars this week and two and one-half dollars next week will soon find himself with more of the two and one-half dollar weeks than the five dollar kind, and the weeks with nothing put aside will creep in in spite of his best intentions. The man who puts aside a sum regularly and has a definite system is the man who has the money when he needs it to grasp his golden opportunity.

The waste of money is frequently not due to extravagance, but to the lack of a definite system. Cut out the waste and "keep pegging away" saving regularly and persistently.

HOW TO NOMINATE TOWN OFFICERS

Because of the many requests for opinions regarding the new town election law, Attorney General Owen sent an opinion to W. W. Storms, district attorney of Racine county, covering opinions on all questions thus far suggested.

"It was the plain intent of the legislature to eliminate all party contests in town and village elections and substitute therefore a purely non-partisan election, says Mr. Owen. 'The caucus referred to in the law is to be non-partisan caucus of all the electors of the town, of whatever political affiliation, and it is the nominees of such caucus that will be entitled to a place as caucus nominees, on the official ballot at the election. It follows that there is to be no party designation or candidates on the official ballot.'

Uncertainty as to Call. The fact that the law does not provide any method of calling the first caucus is evidently due to an oversight on the part of the legislature and creates some uncertainty and confusion as to how the first caucus shall be called. 'Inasmuch as no method is provided in the law itself for the calling of the first caucus, it is apparent that such first caucus cannot be called under legal authority.'

Mr. Owen suggests that where caucuses have not been held a number of electors should circulate a call for a caucus to be held at a given time. He says that the voters should be well notified of the time of holding same.

Who Goes on the Ballot.

"Thus to make it plain," continues Mr. Owen, "this year the election occurs on April 7. The last day for holding the caucus will be March 30. There also seems to be some uncertainty as to whether both those who are nominated by nomination papers and those nominated at the caucus are entitled to positions on the ballot. Upon this subject the law is plain. The names of those who are nominated at the caucus are to be placed on the official ballot."

Mr. Owen says a candidate defeated at the caucus may be nominated by a nomination paper, if he receives the requisite number of signatures.

Town and Village Nominations. 'Any person desiring to run for a town office at the coming spring election, may have his name placed on the ballot in either of the following ways:

First—A regular caucus, the same as formerly held, may be held at least seven days prior to the election and any person nominated at such caucus, for any town office, shall have his name placed upon the official ballot as hereinafter set forth.

Second—At such caucus, if any is held, three qualified electors shall be elected as a caucus committee and next year the said three electors so elected shall give at least five days notice of the time and place of holding the caucus for said succeeding year.

Third—Whether or not a caucus is held and whether or not a person receives the nomination in a caucus, if any is held, this year, any person may have his name placed on the official ballot providing he circulates the regular nomination papers and receives signatures equal to at least ten per cent of all votes cast in the town for all candidates for governor at the last preceding general election, provided that such nomination papers are filed with the town clerk at least five days prior to the holding of such election.

Fourth—Under this law, a town need not hold a caucus this year and all candidates may be nominated by nomination papers or one candidate may be nominated by the caucus and any number of candidates may be nominated by nomination papers.

Fifth—All individual tickets are done away with and the town clerk must furnish sample and official ballots to be printed at the expense of the town, the sample ballots to be printed upon tinted paper and the official ballots upon white paper. All persons, either receiving a nomination at the caucus or having filed nomination papers, shall have their names inserted by the clerk, in the ballot, the names of the candidates to be arranged in alphabetical order under their respective office and sufficient space shall be left under each office to write in a name in place of any on the ballot. In other words, the clerk prepares the same kind of a ballot as is now used at the primary election, and for instance, undertown chairman, should be placed the name of all persons running for town chairman, under that one space and so forth, down through all the different offices. The voters then vote by marking a cross after the particular person they wish to vote for, for the particular office, or of course, everyone has a right to write in a name on the official ballot of any person they wish for, but, only the names marked or written on the official ballot shall be counted.

CHAS. E. BRIERE, District Attorney.

Loss By Fire.

John Bell received word on Tuesday that the dwelling house on his farm in the town of Sigel was destroyed by fire on Monday. It seems that the tenant, Mr. Schroeder, was burning up some rubbish on the place when the fire was communicated to the dwelling and it was burned to the ground. Mr. Bell estimates his loss at about $500 with no insurance. The barn on the premises was saved.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

The following marriage licenses were issued the past week by the county clerk: Edward Scheueman and Della Hoffman both of the town of Arpin. Charles Close, Dodge county to Cora Green town of Grand Rapids. Dan Volon and Minnie Borgman both of the town of Arpin. Gottfried Magnuson, Spooner to Clara Peterson, Marshfield.

An Agreeable Surprise. Mrs. Martin Hanson, who has been confined to her home by sickness during the past thirteen weeks, was agreeably surprised on her birthday by a number of her friends who brought in a gift of flowers, and she wishes to thank her friends for their thoughtfulness. Also S. Holberg for the gift which he brought, which had been made up by a number of friends. Mrs. Hanson has been ill for several years past and thoroughly appreciates the kindness that prompted her friends in this matter.

It seems that the residents of Pittsville are up in arms against the present high taxes, and they propose to do something about them by reviving the old tax revolt. The following letter has been sent out to numerous people living in that vicinity, which is self-explanatory and tells what they propose to do about the matter as an initial step. Following is the letter:

Pittsville, Wis., March 19, 1914. Dear Sir:—Whereas the Counties in the southern part of the State have been calling 'Non-partisan Conventions,' and passing resolutions protesting against the present high rate of State taxation, and against the University of Wisconsin entering into politics.

And whereas the said Counties have appointed Committees to confer with other Counties of the State.

The business men and farmers of Pittsville and surrounding territory, met in the city hall in Pittsville, Wis. on Monday, March 16, and appointed a Committee to call a convention of the citizens of Wood County, Wis., to be held on the 4th day of April 1914, in the City of Pittsville, Wis. To discuss the high rate of taxation, and to appoint Committees to confer with other Counties of the State relative to calling a State Convention.

Good speakers will be in attendance, and we the Committee do earnestly request your hearty cooperation in getting out a good representation of the citizens of Wood County and boost the Convention.

Signed: Dr. Chas. A. Salter, C. E. McKee, H. C. McCoy, Committee.

Of course it is not only the people of Pittsville who are protesting against the rate of taxation as it exists at the present time, but the people all over the county are doing the same thing. Those fellows from Madison who have been proving that the taxes are not high and stating that the commissions are all self-supporting, seemed to have failed to convince the people, and instead of being pacified by the hope that has been sent out, it has had a tendency to rouse their ire, and the result is that many meetings have been held over the state for the purpose of discussing the situation and to see if something cannot be done to remedy the evil.

FORESTERS HOLD A DEBATE

Another very interesting meeting was held by SS. Peter & Paul Court No. 496, Catholic Order of Foresters of this city on Wednesday evening, during which the many members present were given a treat in the way of a debate on the question, "Resolved that the United States should intervene in the Mexican Situation." Each of the debaters demonstrated that they had done some very hard work in preparing their points and both sides of the question were shown up in a way which could not be much improved upon.

Those who took part in the debate were: H. B. Welland, E. N. Pominville, Joseph Reiland and Norman Smith on the affirmative; and J. L. Reinhart, W. H. Carey, A. F. Billmeyer and Ferdinand Link on the negative. The jury which was composed of C. T. Root, Matt Schlegel and Carey, after much deliberation decided that the United States should not intervene for the present at least so it is expected that President Wilson will call off the Cabinet meeting which he has arranged for to take up this question. The verdict of the jury was four to one in favor of the negative.

Speaker Perdzook announced that there would be another of these interesting debates on some current question at the next meeting.

Firemen Hold Annual Banquet.

The east side firemen held their annual banquet at the east side fire house on Monday evening, at which there was a full attendance of firemen as well as a number of honorary members and city officials. An oyster stew was served and the evening was spent in a very pleasant manner. Among the honorary members present were: T. A. Taylor, H. A. Sampson, Sr., E. T. Boettke, Herman Abel, A. J. Hasbrouck, Ed. Mahoney, Sr., and Jacob Lutz, ex-chief. The fire boys all say that the style in which Chief Schuman served the stew and other refreshments was excellent and they enjoyed the evening immensely.

Was Not Diphtheria.

The report that Mrs. J. J. Patrick and daughter Myrtle were sick with diphtheria proved to be untrue, notwithstanding the fact that they were quarantined for several days with what was supposed to be that disease. One of them had quinsy and the other tonsillitis, and they have both recovered sufficiently to be about again.

Returned from the Hospital.

Frank Collier, who has been in the hospital at Rochester, Minn., for some time past, where he underwent an operation for appendicitis, returned home on Friday. Since his operation he has been getting along nicely with every prospect of a complete recovery.

CARL NOT GUILTY OF EMBEZZLEMENT

The case of the state against L. B. Carl, who was charged with embezzling the funds of the Marshfield electric light company, came to a close last Thursday when the jury brought in a verdict of not guilty. The case occupied the attention of the circuit court for about a week, and the prosecution introduced a large mass of evidence and called a number of witnesses, but it seems that it failed to convince the jury of the man's guilt.

Carl was for several years superintendent of the water and lighting plants at Marshfield and last fall there were certain parties who suspected and openly suggested that there was a shortage of the funds in that department. They were so insistent in their demands that at last a committee was appointed to examine the books of the company, and according to the report of this committee there was a shortage in the cash amounting to between four and five thousand dollars. When they made the first report Carl was arrested at Lexington, Ky., where he had gone some time before, but apparently not with the idea of hiding or getting away from the people who wanted him.

During the trial it developed that several people had access to the cash of the company, and notwithstanding that many irregularities were found in the bookkeeping, it seemed to be impossible for the state to prove to the satisfaction of the jury that Carl had been guilty of the charge against him.

Up at Marshfield the people were divided in their opinion as to Carl's guilt, some of them being of the opinion that he was guilty, while others were equally certain that he was innocent.

On the first ballot the jury stood 10 for acquittal, which would indicate that the state had not put up as strong a case as was expected. Carl was defended by Attorney W. E. Wheelan, assisted by Attorney T. W. Brazeau.

WISCONSIN IN THE DAYS OF "OLD ABE" AND NOW.

(Wisconsin Farmer.) When "Old Abe" was launched upon his career of fame by the Eighth Wisconsin Regiment a little more than half a century ago, Wisconsin had 775,000 people; today she has 2,500,000.

In 1860 there were 69,270 farms in Wisconsin, in 1910, 177,127. The acreage in farms in Wisconsin reported to the government in 1860 was 7,899,587. In 1910 this had increased to 21,060,066, vast areas of timber and lowlands having been transferred into farms and farm homes.

The value of farm property, implements, livestock in 1860 was, according to the census, $154,683,386. The reports to the government in 1910 show this increase tenfold, with the enormous total of farm products of $1,413,118,785.

In 1860 Wisconsin stood fifteenth in population, of all the states, and today, despite the growth of new countries, which Wisconsin has helped to people, and the tremendous growth of large cities in older states, Wisconsin has crept to the thirteenth place.

Government statistics show there were 2,059,105 gallons of milk produced on Wisconsin farms in 1860 and in 1900 this had increased to almost 500,000,000 gallons.

In 1860 there were 3,633,750 pounds of butter made on Wisconsin farms, and in 1905, 89,155,976 pounds, about twenty-five times as much.

Milwaukee had a population of 45,446 in 1860 and today she is crowded the 400,000 mark.

There were 1,104,300 pounds of cheese made in Wisconsin in 1860 and 42,000 in 1905.

Only 905 miles of railroad in Wisconsin in 1860 as compared to 7,475 miles in 1910.

The levied ad valorem tax in Wisconsin in 1860 was $2,329,011 and in 1910 $6,503,363.

These are but a few of the interesting government statistics showing the incomparable growth of the state since the war of the rebellion and the days when "Old Abe" started on his career of fame.

Looking Over Paper Mills.

Chris Grapp, a pressman with the Milwaukee Journal, was in the city on Tuesday to look over the paper mills in this vicinity. Mr. Grapp has been on the journal for the past eighteen years, during which time he has ground out thousands of tons of print paper from the mills in this city and vicinity. Mr. Grapp is a brother to Jacob Grapp, the cigar maker, who formerly made his home in this city.

Returned from Convention.

A. C. Otto was in Milwaukee last week where he attended the Rexall convention. He reports having had a pleasant time and is well pleased with his trip. Mr. Otto is numbered among the eight leading Rexall dealers in the state, and one of the Milwaukee papers published a cartoon of him one day. Of course the picture was not as good looking as Gus, but then the artist probably drew it in a hurry.

Several False Alarms.

Just to keep the fire companies limbered up and to make them earn the big money they are receiving each year, there have been several fire alarms turned in lately. One on Saturday proved to be a chimney afire at the residence of Joe Kibicki, and another on Tuesday was caused by some grass burning on the west side. No damage resulted.

Village Has Ornamental Lights. The village of Keosauqua, Minn., with a population of but seven hundred, has one of the handsomest systems of ornamental lighting to be found anywhere. It is believed that this is the smallest installation of ornamental street lighting. The progressive spirit in this little town as evidenced by the installation of a Great White Way in its business section is to be heartily commended. Twenty powerful lamps, of the ornamental luminous type, have been installed on alternate sides of the main street, making that thoroughfare almost as light as day.

ORGANIZE CENTRAL WIS. PRESS ASS'N.

At a meeting of newspaper men held at Marshfield on Friday afternoon, there was formed a society to be known as the Central Wisconsin Press Association, which will embrace newspaper editors and publishers and proprietors of job printing establishments in the counties of Clark, Langlade, Lincoln, Marathon, Portage, Taylor and Wood and any other contiguous territory that may be decided upon later.

The idea of forming a press association was conceived several weeks ago, E. B. Barr, associate editor of the Marshfield Times, being its most active advocate. That the plan met with favor is clearly demonstrated by the fact that thirty men eligible to membership attended the organization meeting, while at least five others have endorsed the move and have expressed a desire to join.

An afternoon session was held at the city hall, when plans were tentatively formulated, views exchanged and a committee was appointed to draw up a suitable set of resolutions. A banquet took place at Hotel Blodgett at 7 o'clock in the evening, when M. C. Douglas of the Dunn County News, Menomonie, gave a splendid talk on "Modernizing the Country Newspaper." The committee on resolutions then reported and the association was formally organized.

The officers chosen are as follows: President—E. B. Barr, Marshfield Times.

Vice President—L. J. Williamson, Nellville Times.

Secretary-Treasurer—B. E. Walters, Mosinee Times.

President Barr appointed an executive council, consisting of one member from each county, as follows: Henry Berner, Antigo Journal; C. E. Crothers, Nellville Republican; Press, W. A. Drumm, Grand Rapids Tribune; J. J. Voornesick, Rib Lake Herald; E. B. Thayer, Wausau Pilot; E. D. Glenn, Stevens Point Gazette, and R. G. Lee, Tomahawk Leader.

Meetings of the association will be held twice yearly—the annual meeting on the third Friday of June and business meetings on the third Friday in October and the third Friday in February. It is planned to make the June meeting a semi-social gathering, to which members will be expected to bring their families.

Marshfield extended a cordial invitation to the visiting craftsmen, representing nineteen cities and villages, namely, Stevens Point, Nellville, Withee, Dorchester, Mosinee, Grand Rapids, Pittsville, Unity, Greenwood, Colby, Vesper, Edgar, Marathon City, Loyal and Abbotsford. The city was theirs from the time they arrived until they departed and a fine spirit of enthusiasm prevailed. That the new organization will be a permanent institution working for better things for central Wisconsin as well as for its members is confidently expected.

It is possible that the June meeting of the association will be held in this city, as an invitation has been extended to them to make Grand Rapids their headquarters at that time and it is expected that the invitation will be accepted.

County Educational Board.

The following men have filed their nomination papers for members of the county educational board: Joseph Seid of Pittsville; Reuben Connor of Abundantia, P. N. Christensen of the town of Lincoln and Ed. Morris of the town of Arpin, and E. Eichstadt of Port Edwards. It is not expected that they will have any opposition.

Spring is Here.

According to Hoyle and Ayers almanack spring started in on Saturday last, but outside of this there is nothing to indicate that we have reached this much looked for goal. Mercury doesn't go quite down to zero these nights, but everything remains frozen solid most of the time.

MANY ANSWERS TO THE WORD CONTEST

First prize on one dollar in the missing word contest was won by Miss Sylvia Pleckham, R. D. No. 5, Grand Rapids, Wis., and the money awaits her at the Tribune office.

The second prize of a year's subscription was won by Mrs. Frank Look, of 321 9th street Grand Rapids.

The interest that was displayed in this contest was truly surprising, and the answers received indicated that the ads had been read very carefully. The missing word was the word "eyes" in the A. P. Hitz ad, and was correctly guessed by a number of people. Many found words missing where there were no missing words, and many passed over the place where the missing word was to find a harder place to look for it.

This week two prizes will be awarded again the same as last week, and readers of the Tribune are urged to get their answers in early so that they will reach the office by Saturday night.

The fact that you live out of town need not keep you from making a guess, as your chances are just as good as if you lived here in the city.

As to which is the biggest little store in Grand Rapids, nobody came in with the right answer and this will be open for one more week, when the owner of the store will make the get two dollars of easy money. If announcement. Now here is a chance you haven't a postage stamp, just seal your answer up in an envelope and leave it at the Tribune office.

A WISCONSIN MAN INVENTED THE AUTO

There is talk among auto enthusiasts of conferring some sort of recognition upon Dr. J. W. Carhart of Austin, Texas, who, it is claimed, was the first man to construct an automobile and run it. Dr. Carhart was formerly a resident of Racine, and it was in the year 1871 that he put his first horseless carriage upon the highway, he living at Racine at that time.

The first auto differed somewhat in lines from the automobile of today, being operated by steam, the steam being generated by the use of coal. Dr. Carhart says that when he appeared on the highway with his first machine it was not necessary to carry a horn or other alarm to let people know that he was coming. In fact, the machine made enough noise so that teams and pedestrians for several blocks in every direction gave him the right of way.

One man steered the machine while another shoveled coal into the furnace, and the way they rattled down the street was a terror to everything in the shape of horse flesh. It had a modern locomotive backed off the map as a noise producer, and it is needless to say that the public did not hail the new invention with the delight they might have done could they have foreseen what the industry of manufacturing autos would eventually develop into.

The machine invented by Dr. Carhart was run only a short time, when it was dismantled, and the engine was placed in a printing office, and there was a hush in the auto world for a time. A few years after this there were a number of cities that had fire engines that were operated by steam, but this method of propulsion never became very popular for a long term of years, or until it was applied to the pleasure car that used something besides coal for fuel.

Dr. Carhart by the way, is a father of Charles W. Carhart, who formerly lived in this city and was engaged in the undertaking business in company with J. W. Natwick. Dr. Carhart visited in this city while his son resided here, and the well along in years, is still an enthusiastic automobilist. He also invented a tire constructed of paper to take the place of rubber, but up to date this has never come into general use.

The Grand Rapids lodge of Elks have taken up the "Big Brother Movement," and as outlined, the plan is a good one, and should be productive of results. The lodge has appointed as a committee to further the movement E. W. Ellis, L. M. Nash and George W. Mead. Following is an explanation of the matter: The "Big Brother Movement" in the B. P. O. Elks, is briefly stated, that each Brother Elks should take it upon himself to play the part of a Big Brother to some unfortunate little fellow who, to quote from the recommendation of the movement of Grand Exalted Ruler, August Herrmann, in his annual report to the Grand Lodge session at Atlantic City, July, 1911: "Possibly for lack of right home influence, or because of evil association; or because of what is called incorrigibility, has fallen and has bitterness in his heart, to the knowledge of the fact that he is an integral part of humanity, and that it depends, in the largest degree, upon himself whether his future be one of rectitude, making him a valuable element of society or otherwise. The work is not done by severity, nor by distrust of lawlessness, but by kindness shown to him and continued to him by his Big Brother—that is to say, by you my Brothers, and by me, and by all whose hearts are not calloused, but who once were boys, and know the temptations and the dangers to which the boy is exposed."

Since this idea was first suggested to the order by Brother Herrmann there has been no concerted action in the subordinate lodges to put the idea into practical operation. And this, not because our brothers are unable or unwilling to become "Big Brothers," but rather, we believe, because there has been no well-defined plan by which the boys requiring the assistance of Big Brothers could be sought out and brought to the attention and care of the Big Brothers. Recognizing the importance of an organized effort in each subordinate lodge to protect and look after those little fellows, the Grand Lodge at its last session at Rochester, N. Y., gave its unqualified endorsement to a plan of work in furtherance of the "Big Brothers Movement," which had been adopted and put into practical operation by Hammond, Indiana, Lodge No. 485. This plan is as follows:

Have each lodge furnish to the judge of the juvenile court the names of all Elks, who are willing to act as Big Brothers to the unfortunate boys brought into such court. The judge then instead of committing or prohibiting the boy to the custody of a probation officer or other officer asks a Big Brother Elks to look after and take care of the boy. Under this plan the little fellow is not obliged to report to the court, or to a probation officer, but the report of the boy and the progress is made by the Big Brother without the knowledge of the boy, thus eliminating the one objectionable feature of the juvenile court system, namely: the rule requiring the boy to report at stated intervals to an officer attached to the court.

The Big Brother in looking after the little brother must necessarily come in contact with the parent or parents of the boy, and thus is in a position to acquaint himself with the causes which are responsible for the boy's delinquency. It also affords the Big Brother an opportunity to help the parents of the boy by advice and suggestion to live along right lines, and to assist the boy in many ways to make it easier for the little fellow, with the aid of the Big Brother to become and be a better boy.

In many places it will be found that there are no juvenile court systems, and in many localities the number of boys brought into such courts is, fortunately, not large enough to provide work for all Elks who are willing to act as Big Brothers. But the Big Brothers movement should not be confined altogether to reclaiming the bad boy. It will be found that there are many cases where little fellows whose parents are poor but deserving, should be assisted and the education and general welfare of the boy looked after by a Big Brother. The names of such boys can easily be obtained from the principals and teachers in both public and private schools.

In arranging with the various juvenile courts, it is necessary that the judge of each court be furnished with the following information: The name, age, residence, occupation, whether married or single, and the church, if any, which the Big Brother attends. The latter information is given for the purpose of preserving the non-sectarianism of the order, and so that the judge may, in committing the boy to the care of a Big Brother, be assured that the Big Brother will have charge of the boy whose parents are affiliated with the same church in which the Big Brother may be interested.

Following the endorsement of the above plan, Grand Exalted Ruler, Brother Edward Leach, appointed the undersigned Grand Lodge committee on "Big Brothers Movement." It is the duty of this committee to present to each subordinate lodge, the plan of work first adopted by Hammond lodge, to recommend that each lodge adopt this or a similar plan of work, to recommend that the Exalted Ruler of each lodge appoint a committee of his lodge to be known as "Big Brothers Movement," and to assist in carrying out the original idea of the "Big Brothers Movement."

This movement did not originate in the Order of Elks. It has been in operation in the East, in a limited way for a number of years. Some very excellent gentlemen there have done and are doing a wonderful work. But the idea to have the B. P. O. Elks as an organization take up the "Big Brothers Movement" is original with our order.

Never before in the history of the world, has a fraternal or benevolent organization undertaken such a splendid work. Can you understand, brothers, the possibilities of this movement? Do you realize that we have in our glorious order 1,500 lodges, with a total membership of 500,000 men, comprising the best element in our American citizenship? Think of the boys that can be saved and made better, if each and every Elks would do his duty in this one particular.

Let us then vigorously begin our work in the "Big Brothers Movement." Organize a "Big Brothers" club in your lodge. Have your committee on "Big Brothers Movement" find the boys who need a Big Brother's care, and see that they get in the hands of the right "Big Brothers."

The Grand Lodge committee will be glad to receive suggestions from you, and also will be glad at any time to assist you in every possible way in the grand work of the "Big Brothers Movement."

Home Interests Menaced by Profit. Janet Fenimore Kormogid, National Lecturer for the Social Democratic party, arraigns the Profit System as inimical to the interests of Mother and Child.

"Society insists that woman fulfill her highest function as housewife and mother," says Mrs. Kormogid, "but while this rigidly outlines her duties and obligations, it does not secure for her the means of successfully fulfilling these duties. There is no natural relation between housekeeping and motherhood. Only economic necessity and insane social traditions thrust the task of cooking upon mothers, and the duties of motherhood upon cooks."

"The average home woman spends by far the greater part of her time, not in the care and training of her children, but in the purchase and preparation of food and clothing. And in the performance of these tasks she finds our great industrial system arrayed against her."

"This is the Socialist's indictment against private industry. It makes all the necessities of life on a basis of profit, rather than upon a basis of utility. Instead of manufacturing the necessities of life to meet the needs of the people, capitalism manufactures every commodity with a view to gouging a profit out of the consumer's necessity."

"The mother of the working class must give her children food which was not made primarily to eat; she must dress them in clothing that was made to sell rather than to wear; she must shelter them in a house that was made to rent instead of to live in, for as long as our system of private ownership of industry lasts, the primary object of industry will be profit, and the secondary object utility."

"The men of the working class make all the necessities of life. Theirs is a difficult task. They are the wage earners. The women of the working class buy all the necessities of life for their families. They are the wage spenders. But if it is a difficult task to earn the average wages of the average working man in such a way that they will cover the cost of the necessities of life for an entire family."

"Socialism means the social production of the necessities of life. It means the production of food and clothing in socially-owned industries. It means their production on a basis of utility. It means the ability to secure these necessities at practically the cost of their production—profit eliminated."

"In the success of this new industrial ideal, therefore, the housewives of the working class see their emancipation from the economic and financial problems which now harass them."

In a recent editorial of the Monroe County Democrat, we find some very pointed remarks with reference to citizenship. We have had this matter up and it has come to us again and again, especially when citizenship is being conferred by the circuit court to those of foreign lands who have come to our country and cast their fortunes with the rest of the people. It is true that if a great many of our citizens should attend the ceremony pursuant to the bestowing of this great privilege upon the applicants who have been heretofore subjects of other countries, they could not help but be impressed with the solemnity of the proceedings and the appreciation of the liberty which he was enjoying under this form of government.

We who have enjoyed this privilege as a birth right seem hardly to realize the great benefits derived from our form of government as it is evident on the faces of those who are made citizens by the courts, that they appreciate, very highly this gift of citizenship which brings with it the great responsibility of being loyal to the government.

We ought not, however, to be unmindful of the fact that this citizenship which we enjoy is not given merely for the purpose so we can exercise the franchise and vote, but we are expected, all of us, to consider that this citizenship imposes great responsibility and this franchise, given to the newly acquired citizens, should not be exercised by them to aid the office seeker in his little selfish sphere wherein he is making all efforts for the betterment of his own individual citizenship, regardless of what these new citizens owe to the municipality, county, state and nation.

In the city of Chicago, a large organization has taken up the project of calling mass meetings and making an effort to secure the attendance of all new citizens for the purpose of educating them in the value of good citizenship and the great good they can do for the betterment of conditions of their own people by setting a worthy example and a high mark as a loyal citizen. At these meetings they have been printing books of rules, promulgated by Rabbis, which is termed the "Ten Commandments of Citizenship." Not only are these commandments of great value to the new citizens, but should be to the old citizens, and if every citizen in the state of Wisconsin and the nation will paste these commandments in their hats and whenever they have a spare moment, study them over and commit them to memory, this will signify that they are interested in good citizenship, anxious to be guided by a code of rules like this, which will insure that the nation shall endure forever.

The composition and characteristics of the population of Wisconsin as reported at the thirteenth decennial census are given in an advance bulletin soon to be issued by Director Durand of the bureau of the census, department of commerce and labor. It was prepared under the supervision of W. C. Hunt, chief statistician for population.

Of the total population of Wisconsin 753,225 or 32.7 per cent. are native whites of native parentage; 1,044,761 or 44.7 per cent. are native whites of foreign or mixed parentage and 512,569 or 22 per cent. are foreign born whites. The corresponding percentages in 1900 were 28.3, 40.2 and 24.9 respectively, the proportion of native whites of native parentage having increased somewhat during the decade. There are 1,208,578 males and 1,125,282 females or 107.4 males to 100 females. In 1900 the ratio was 106.6 to 100.

The total number of persons of school age—that is, from 6 to 20 years, inclusive, is 732,544 of whom 484,529 or 66.2 per cent. attended school. In addition to these 22,287 children under 6, and 7,985 persons under 21 and over attended school. The census bureau classifies as illiterate any person 10 years of age or over who is unable to write, regardless of ability to read. There are 7,760 illiterates in the state representing 3.2 per cent. of the total population 10 years of age and over as compared with 4.7 per cent. in 1900. The percentage of illiteracy is mostly among the Indians, foreign born whites and negroes.

The total number of dwellings in Wisconsin is 426,355 and the total number of families 499,629, there being 108.1 families to each 100 dwellings. The average number per dwelling is 5, and the average number per family, 4.7.

BREAKING GAME LAW

BARS HIS CITIZENSHIP

A Wood county citizen residing near Marshfield was refused his naturalization papers at Grand Rapids Monday because he admitted that he had violated the game law. When asked by the judge "if within the last year he had committed a crime punishable by law he said that he had been arrested for killing game birds out of season. "Were you aware you were committing a crime?" asked the judge. "I know the law and look chances," answered the applicant. "You will have to wait five years longer before you can become a citizen and not then unless your conduct is better than now," said the judge as he rapped on his desk with his gavel and called out "next."—Marshfield Herald.

MAYOR HEIM PASSES JUDGMENT IN "THE TRAFFIC" CLEAN, HE SAYS

—Wisconsin State Journal.—Among others that thronged the Fuller open house Friday night to see "The Traffic" was Mayor Heim and Mrs. Heim.

"I saw absolutely nothing objectionable in 'The Traffic' as played last morning. It was a good moral sermon and a fine exposition of conditions that do exist in the big cities." The mayor had been furnished with notices and literature on the play long before it was due to reach Madison. On his desk this morning were clean bills of health in form of letters from various high officials in Chicago. The mayor had been asked some time ago to pass judgment on the play and he refused to consider ruling it off the local stage.

"I saw no reason last night," continued the mayor, "to change my original opinion. My wife was with me. She could not believe that such things should exist. I think the play was of great value educationally." Coming to Daly's Theatre soon.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Alderman in the 5th Ward, City of Grand Rapids, at the election on April 7th.

Henry Yeschke.

There is a man in town who hasn't spoken to his wife for ten days. He is so mad that he doesn't go home to his meals, and all because she played a joke on him. He had for years been telling her that he had heart disease and that he would go off some night. After hearing his talk for thirteen years she finally got tired of it, and concluded to try a remedy that would prove a radical cure, (he being as healthy as a yearling.) A month ago she bought one of those rubber bags for keeping hot water to the feet, and one morning when she had the bag at her feet for a couple of hours, she thought what a joke it would be to place it on her husband's stomach, as he was fast asleep and snoring. The bag held three quarts, and was as warm as a cow's liver and as warm as a poultice. It hadn't been on his chest and other parts more than two minutes when he opened his eyes, raised up his head and said: "Jane, my end has come." She stuffed the upper works of her night dress into her mouth to keep from laughing, and then asked, "Which end, Charles?" At the same time unscrewing the nozzle that held the water in the bag. He cried, "My God, I am bleeding to death!" as the three quarts of hot water poured out, saturating him from head to heels. He attempted to stop the flow of blood, and she struck a light and asked him if he had not sprung a leak. He looked at the rubber bag, then went to sleep on the lounge, and now thinks his wife one of the meanest women in the world.

The Manitowish Herald hits the straight facts when it asserts that "the man who keeps abreast of the times must advertise his business; the corporation which is seeking public patronage must advertise, and in fact any project which is to be a successful one can only prove a success after a comprehensive advertising campaign." Truth crushed to earth will rise again.

—Lucky Sam is a good cigar with a long filler. It's only a nickel, and has lots of the ten centers beaten.

The state board of health on Wednesday made first shipments of silver nitrate from Madison to physicians and midwives of the state, as provided by a law passed at the last legislature. Each package contains twenty-four ampules of beeswax and a package of needles. The ampules have in their center a few drops of the one per cent. solution of the salt. The needle is used to pierce the end of the ampule then permits the few drops to be squeezed out. One drop is sufficient for each eye of the newborn child.

According to the Anti-Saloon league year book for 1914, just issued, there was one saloon for every 196 people in Wisconsin in 1912. Saloons in the state at the beginning of 1913 were 8,922 and the average license fee a little over $240. There was 12 dry cities, 12 dry villages, and 747 dry and 515 wet towns. Of the towns, 234 were voted dry, and in 438 there had never been an application for license. Twenty-five per cent of the state's population, according to the book, is under no-license administration.

Nekosia Times.—Up to last Friday evening all told, forty-two houses or establishments in Nekosia had been wired for electricity. Of this number Joseph Staub, the Grand Rapids electrician, was contractor for thirty-eight, and he has yet to hear the first complaint from any. In addition Mr. Staub installed a twenty-horse power electric motor for Robert Beppler, which was placed in his house at Lakeview near the depot. With a large majority of the businesses lighted with electricity, residences will be added in a very short time and before our people are aware of their condition they will possess all of the necessities and conveniences and many of the luxuries of a modern city.

Vesper State Center.—J. Bugenhagen, a town of Hansen farmer, met with a very unfortunate accident Tuesday when he had his left hand cut off by a wood saw. The accident happened about eleven o'clock on the Matt Barth farm. He was working as second man at the saw, and as strange as it may seem, the head man at the saw did not see the accident nor did any of the men about. It is thought he must have slipped forward in some manner. The men managed to get a good twist on the arm to prevent loss of blood. Lee Hottman drove him to town in time to catch the 12:35 train to Grand Rapids. Dr. Whitehouse went down on the train with them. Mr. Bugenhagen was taken to Riverview hospital where Drs. Whitehouse and Waters amputated the arm just below the elbow. Mr. Bugenhagen is 60 years of age. While these accidents are deplorable at best, yet a man of his age can endure the consequences better than if the unfortunate had fallen to one of his sons.

Plant Trees.

New is the time to put in your trees. Every property owner should see to it that there are the requisite number of trees in the parking round his lot. Every street in the city should have a continuous line of shade trees on both sides, thereby adding to the beauty of the city and the comfort of the wayfarer on hot summer days.

Do not delay this matter of tree planting—trees are necessarily of slow growth, hence get them in as soon as possible. The Park Commissioners are not only interested in our city as a whole, and they are very anxious that trees be planted wherever needed. The Commission has no authority or right to improve private property, but they are most anxious that each lot owner keep up his premises as best he possibly can.

We will be glad to furnish you with information as to buying and setting out of trees, and we sincerely hope that each season will see an added number of trees and shrubs.

A Long Drawn Out Case.

The case of the R. Connor company versus the Wisconsin Central Ry., is now on trial at the court house, and the indications are that it will last for some time yet.

In this case the Connor Company is suing the railroad for damages from fire that occurred in the village of Auburndale some eight years ago, in which quite a section of the village was burned. It is claimed that the fire started from the engines of the defendant company and that consequently they are responsible for the loss above the insurance. The insurance company that paid a part of the loss is also suing the railroad company.

Death of Mrs. Mary Compton.

(Contributed.)

The death of Mrs. Mary Compton formerly of Rudolph and Nekosia, occurred on March 19, at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Moore, in Plainfield, Wisconsin, which had been Mrs. Compton's home for a few years past. She was confined to her bed the last two months although her illness covered a period of nearly two years duration. Having undergone two serious operations at different times at Riverview hospital in this city. Her children, William Compton and wife of DeKalb, Illinois, Clarence Compton and wife and her son Elmer were in constant attendance during the last weeks of her life. No more beautiful tribute could be paid to anyone than that expressed by the devotion and loving care shown Mrs. Compton by her children and two grandchildren.

The funeral and burial services were held on Saturday, the 21st at Plainfield, Wis., L. E. Calman officiating. She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, and entered fully into its interests, a clear minded christian woman. A devoted wife, a patient, noble life, loyal to her friends and faithful to every duty.

Her entrance into the life beyond was full of peace, and though her loneliness remains, for her is only thankfulness.

Interesting Corn Test.

As a matter of interest to the farmer some of the corn which has been on exhibit at the First National bank was tested for size and weight. In each case an ear of average size was selected—not the largest nor the smallest, and the results are somewhat astonishing. In the table below after the name of the ear, is given the length of the ear, the weight before shelling, and the weight of shelled corn.

Pure Bred Golden Glow	11.8 x 8.8 oz.	71.8 oz.
Glow	11.8 x 8.8 oz.	66.8 oz.
Spunky	11.8 x 8.8 oz.	66.8 oz.

Spunky	11.8 x 8.8 oz.	66.8 oz.
Spunky	11.8 x 8.8 oz.	66.8 oz.

These tests bear out the statements of the College of Agriculture regarding the excellence of Golden Glow corn which they have been breeding for the past 12 years, and inasmuch as it has been bred especially for this latitude it will probably become the standard corn for Central Wisconsin.

Of the 265 Holstein-Friesian cows recently admitted to the Advanced Registry of the breed and listed in the latest report received from the superintendent of the Advanced Registry, sixty-two or approximately one-fourth were owned in Wisconsin. All but five of these were bred within the state. One other cow that was accepted for entry was also bred in Wisconsin and later sold outside the state. The average production of all the cows, of which about one-half were heifers with their first or second calf, was 407.3 pounds of milk, testing 1.51 per cent of fat and containing 12.24 pounds of butter fat, equal to 16 pounds of butter.

The Melrose Times has hit upon a new idea of giving news. Instead of publishing items from the files of 20 years ago it publishes them 20 years ahead. Here is one of the items: "The local Ford agency received eight car loads of Ford cars last week. These cars are for the most part spoken for. The price of the new cars with coil spring tires is $80.00. Equipped with self-starter and electric lights, $100."

"SAFETY FIRST" MOVEMENT

An event of prime importance to the citizens of Grand Rapids, one of more than usual interest, is being shown at the Ideal Theater for next Friday evening and Saturday afternoon, the 27th and 28th inst. Mr. H. L. Brown, head of the Chicago City Railway Co., will show the three-reel moving pictures which the Chicago City Railway Co. procured at a very large expense, illustrating the manner in which accidents occur on the streets of Chicago through pedestrians being caught by street cars, automobiles and traffic. No moving pictures are quite so thrilling and intensely interesting as these, and the people of Grand Rapids are indebted to the Safety First Committee of the Consolidated Mill for this instructive and educational opportunity.

The "Safety First" Movement is sweeping the country. All lines of manufacturing industry—street railways, steam railways, steamship companies—are giving their best attention to the matter of the prevention of the loss of life, loss of limbs and loss of wages through accidents. It will probably be news to the great majority of people in Grand Rapids to learn that there is in the Consolidated Mill a committee of five men known as the "Safety First Committee." This Committee has already made a thorough investigation of the mill and has made several splendid "Safety First" recommendations, which the management has approved and ordered. The members of the Safety First Committee are as follows: Mrs. Geo. Sherman, Chairman, Mr. Geo. Hutton, Secretary, Mr. Henry Alpine, Mr. Fred Levermore, Mr. Mark Whitlock.

This Safety First Committee is to be congratulated on being able to bring to so prominent a speaker and such magnificent films to the city.

Every citizen should see these pictures and hear Mr. Brown explain them.

The Carl Kronholm home and other buildings had a close call on Sunday. Just as the family returned from church, fire was discovered in the house up stairs and there was a nice blaze which had burned a hole in the floor and also some of Oscar Kronholm's clothing. It was a mighty close call and as the wind was blowing in such a direction that the entire farm buildings would have been wiped out if the family had not returned just when they did.

Mrs. Kraus and children returned home on Tuesday from Chilton where they have been visiting relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Mros of Coleman are expected here this week for a brief visit with relatives and friends.

Earl Atkins spent Wednesday at Rudolph.

A large number from here attended the auction at Rudolph on Thursday.

Mrs. Jack Sternot, visited her daughter in your city the first of the week.

B. Y. P. S. met at the Wm. Crundstedt home on Thursday night with a large crowd in attendance.

Born unto Mr. and Mrs. Jim Chapinski a baby girl last Wednesday.

Misses Berdena and Ploy Berg spent Sunday of last week at the Coombs home at Sherry.

Miss Hulda Holstrom is home from Byron where she has been employed.

Mrs. Anton Jones is reported to be on the sick list.

Eric Pearson visited at the Klapp home last week, a guest of Miss Fannie.

August Krommakker spent Monday at Milladore.

Arvid Anderson is home from Rudolph where he has been employed at the Whitman farm for the past year.

Nearly a Holdup.

Frank Bardou, who is employed at the Byron mill, was among the callers at the Tribune office on Saturday, and while here related a queer experience which he had on Friday evening while returning to Byron from this city. It was about 11:30 o'clock and Mr. Bardou had reached a point about three miles from town, when he was stopped by a man who asked him for money. The man was not particularly polite in his request, altho he did not display a weapon of any kind, and when Mr. Bardou refused his request the stranger stated that he would take it anyway. Mr. Bardou pulled off his coat and told him to come on, at the same time pulling out a knife to defend himself with. The man made one swipe at Mr. Bardou and then made off without continuing the argument any further, while Mr. Bardou resumed his discarded coat and continued on his way to Byron. He is of the opinion that the man was a tramp who thought he could pick up a little change with very little effort, but found he was mistaken.

North Dakota farmers on the Great Northern Dairy Special recently visiting some of Wisconsin's noted dairy farms, commented at length upon the dairy co-operation everywhere apparent, and in connection with it, the familiarity with production records, value of animals, etc. shown by business men in the dairy localities. Another significant observation they made in relation to the College of Agriculture, was the progressive team-work of the staff, the effects of which are continually being realized in other states as well as in Wisconsin.

Lady Paul Livard 3rd, owned by J. W. Dimick, R. 1ton, N. Y. has broken the Holstein-Friesian record for fat production in the junior two-year class of the semi-official yearly division. She produced in 365 consecutive days 20,336.7 pounds of milk containing 72.66 pounds of fat. The test was supervised by eight different men.

The veterinary and dairy cattle departments of the Wisconsin Experiment Station at Madison, are at present engaged in the treatment of contagious abortion of cattle. Dr. F. A. Rich of the Vermont station, in his bulletin 174, reports startling success in the internal treatment of this disease with methylene blue, but authorities are not at all certain that its general use should be advised until more complete and practical experimental data is obtained.

HEALTH

In the "good old days" ghosts were frequently invented to have something upon which to hang responsibility for doily things which was in no wise of spiritual origin. Modern sanitarians are coming to look upon sewer gas as a "ghost" with a similar pedigree. What is called sewer "gas" is, in reality, only the air of sewers. It smells bad. Smells however don't cause disease. Experiments have demonstrated that sewer air is apt to be purer, as regards germs, than ordinary street air. Whatever gases are given off are in too small quantities to cause disease.

Sewer gas has been, and still is, popularly held to be responsible for typhoid fever, measles, diphtheria, scarlet fever, dysentery, and other infectious diseases. We are certain that all these diseases are due to germs. The germs of typhoid fever and dysentery are occasionally present in sewage. It's a mistake to think they multiply or even thrive there. Germs are solid matter. As such, they are not apt to be taken up by the air of sewers. Nobody would suggest that wet mud will give off dust.

Throughout history, man has sought reasons for natural phenomena not readily understood. The least he knows the more easily he is satisfied with unreasonable explanations. Some popular explanations of disease are as ridiculous as the savage's explanation of fire, for example.

The term "sewer gas" sounds mysterious and suggests poisoning. There is a certain plausibility about attributing to it disease which is not easily explained on other grounds. When we know, however, that probably all infectious diseases are of germ origin and something of the nature and habits of germs, the old theories concerning sewer gas will not hold. Further, it is an interesting fact that workmen employed in large sewer systems are rather more than ordinarily strong and healthy.

Attributing contagious diseases at least, to sewer gas, is a short cut. It satisfies only those people who are too lazy to, or can't think.

Ghosts disappeared when people took to chasing them with the question mark. The question mark is going to raise havoc with the sewer gas bugbear amongst other disease superstitions.

Sparrows Good Human Food.

English sparrows are pronounced by United States experts on ornithology to be a perfect substitute for feed birds as a food. It is suggested that by trapping sparrows, an excellent food could be supplied for the poor man's table; this would help to reduce a bird pest, for the English sparrow has long been recognized as an enemy of many birds that are the farmer's friends.

Keep Pegging Away

It is not what we can do by spasms of hard work or saving that will count—it is what we do regularly seven days in a week, twelve months in each year, that brings the real results.

The man who saves five dollars this week and two and one-half dollars next week will soon find himself with more of the two and one-half dollar weeks than the five dollar kind, and the weeks with nothing put aside will creep in in spite of his best intentions. The man who puts aside a sum regularly and has a definite system is the man who has the money when he needs it to grasp his golden opportunity.

The waste of money is frequently not due to extravagance, but to the lack of a definite system. Cut out the waste and "keep pegging away" saving regularly and persistently.

won't stand upright, but what's the use of holding the sack? They want to change the name of this blessed burg to some heathenish name like Ahmageddon or Ahdahwagan, or some other title which nobody would be able to pronounce. If they must go to such an extreme, why not select a short pithy name like "Mecca" or "Kellogg," which every one would know the meaning of (without consulting a lawyer) and that it stands for something good like the good stuff they haul out of the Kellogg yards when a rush order comes in.

Our community was shocked Saturday by the news that Mrs. Mary Duckie, wife of Oscar Duckie was dead. She died Wednesday night at 9 o'clock at the Jane McAlister hospital in Waukegan, Ill.

Mary Isabel Duckie was the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Duncan, who formerly lived on the Brooks' farm in Hansen, but who, later moved to their old home in Waukegan, where they now live. She was born at Milburn, Ill., Aug. 21, 1882. She was married to Oscar Duckie April 16, 1913. They occupied the John Maxwell house until she became quite sick in January and on getting better she decided to make her parents a visit and next to Waukegan. She has never been since that time in her usual health. On Monday, March 16, she became a mother, but the life of the babe was short, and soon passed away. Her condition was very critical and efforts to save her life were in vain and she passed away Wednesday night. She and her babe were buried in the same coffin and the funeral was held Friday afternoon at 2:30 at the First Methodist church at Waukegan, and was buried in the Oakwood cemetery. She leaves her husband, her father and mother and four brothers and one sister. Mrs. Duckie was loved by all who knew her and was a favorite among her many friends. Her husband who is bereft of his helpmate after the short period of 11 months has the sympathy of the community in his hour of sorrow. Our Heavenly Father, we will be comforted!

Thou wast the gracious giver! We yield her up—hot dead, not dead To dwell with those forever. Take thou our child also, our's for a day.

Thine while the ages blossom, This little shining head we lay In the Redeemer's bosom.

Though for above our sight.

Though deep and sore the smart, The hand that wounds knows how to bind

And heal the broken heart.

Beloved, "It is well!"

Though sorrow clouds our way, 'Twill only make the joy more dear

That ushers in the day.

It be, Leads home to heaven and God.

Women and children are particularly interested in George Klein's mammoth photo-drama, production "Quo Vadis" which is to be the important attraction at Daly's Theatre Tuesday, April 7th, matinee and night with daily matinees thereafter. The women reveal in the beautiful love scene that is folded in the changing Sienkiewicz romance while the children appreciate its vast aid to their study of Roman history and take particular delight in the big spectacular features—the burning of Rome—the chariot races—combats of the gladiators and thrilling experience of the Christians when thrown to the hungry lions in the arena—and the grown-up children, the men, seem to enjoy it as much as their wives and offspring. It has a wonderful appeal to all society and is doing a remarkable business.
